In Recalling Things Chinese--

I remember these things about China:

I remember a scrawny, small man plowing his water buffalo in a rice paddy. He slid and stumbled through the knee-deep water behind the muddy, lumbering animal, putting all his slight weight on the plow.

He was curved by labor. His scant, white garments were wet and mud-stained.

His wife followed behind him, sticking the fresh, green rice shoots down through the fresh-stirred water into the muddy bottom.

We had parked there by the roadside on a trip inland from Chungking in March of 1945 and were eating sandwiches and drinking tea from a thermos jug. When the woman came out for more rice sprouts and the man had stopped his buffalo to rest the Columbia - University - graduate Chinese who was along as escort, followed instructions and invited them over. They came unwillingly, obviously suspicious and afraid.

Peasant

We passed sandwiches and tea in paper cups. He had, he said, lived there all his life and his forebears before him. He would not say the rent was heavy or light. He was afraid. He said he took no part in politics. He was a peasant and all he wanted was to farm. He was polite, not friendly.

I recall the carts in Chungking and those met along the road. Anywhere from three to five men would be hitched to them with ropes. To see them straining up a hill—and the land about Chungking is all hills—was not pleasant. Bent low, muscles bulging from thin legs and backs, they repeated a coughing, rhythmic "Ho! Ho! Ho!" like the spike-drivers in the days when swingers of hammers drove railroad spikes.

I remember, too, the second day out when one of the ancient, oft-repaired inner tubes blew. We stood again by the road. Across from us a tall Chinese farmer walked from his house to the edge of a rice paddy and squatted there to wash his hands. He did not look at us. He finished and walked back.

"Damn him," said the Chinese official with us, "he does not care about us or the Japanese or the Communists. He cannot read or write. He has no radio. He cannot be reached. He is suspicious of us all. All he wants is to be left alone."

There is in almost every community in America one or more persons who can explain why Communism is a force among the peasants of China, India, Indochina, Burma, the Philippines, Malaya, and other areas through the Far East.

These persons are the Americans who served in those areas during the war.

These Americans know why Chiang Kai-shek's government failed—and why Mao's may—if it cannot keep promises.

Fertilizer

I see by the reports of missionaries who have returned that in some areas distant from cities where drouth has been bad, the Communists in China are sending out agricultural teachers and free fertilizer.

They have not yet seized grain, although in the areas near cities they are demanding sale of the grain at liberal prices.

It may safely be assumed the Chinese peasant is suspicious of the Communists. But he will be attracted. He long ago came to feel an antagonism for the West—for those of other countries who ruled his country. He came also to dislike any war or army, because armies took what they wanted.

He is puzzled by the Communist armies, which have behaved well, and which have been trained in propaganda.

Chamdo Fortress

An example was the weekend story of how the Chinese Red soldiers took the Tibetan fortress of Chamdo, on the main caravan route from China to the heart of Tibet, with a sudden display of rockets and fireworks at the midnight hour.

The defending general and his army were captured. The Communists promptly paid each soldier the equivalent of $5, allowed them to keep their weapons, fed them, gave them a demonstration of mortars and automatic weapons and invited them to join the army. They did.

Those Americans who think of solving China in terms of the old China are so terribly wrong they add to the already desperate frustration. How to reach the Chinese with seeds and help and to convince them we are not interested in reimposing the old system, which Chiang Kai-shek maintained to his own loss—and ours—is the grave problem.

China Hands India Plan For Truce

Danger Warning Sounded by U. S.

By WALTER SULLIVAN
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 22—India disclosed Monday that Communist China had agreed that a cease-fire in Korea could be arranged as a first step at a seven-power conference before settlement of general political problems.

While Britain and others viewed this as coming closer to a satisfactory basis for peace, the United States termed it "a transparent effort to divide the free world."

The action occurred in the political and Security Committee of the General Assembly, which had been debating an American proposal to brand Communist China an aggerssor and take collective measures against that country. Warren R. Austin of the American delegation, in a heated speech, attacked an Indian motion to adjourn the meeting for 48 hours.

Sir Benegal N. Rau of India had suggested that delegates should have time to study the new statement, which had been handed to the Indian ambassador in Peiping. Despite vigorous American opposition the adjournment was voted 27 to 23 with six abstentions.

Among those in favor were Britain, Canada, most of the Asian and Arab delegations, several Latin-American delegations and the Soviet bloc. Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain told the committee that Peiping's statement created a "new situation."

The Chinese Communist statement was made, Sir Benegal told the commitee, at the request of the Indian ambassador for clarification of Peiping's position. It had three points:

1. If the withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea was "being put into effect," Peiping would "advise the Chinese volunteers to return to China."

2. Settlement of the Korean problem could be in two steps, the first being agreement at the initial meeting of a seven-power conference to "a cease-fire for a limited-time period." The second step, after the cease-fire went into effect, would be settlement of the Korean problem and other Far Eastern problems.

3. "The definite affirmation of the legitimate status of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations must be ensured."

The United States now faces somewhat of a dilemma in the Political Committee. If it agrees to consider Peiping's renewed overtures for a negotiated peace it is bound to incur wide criticism at home, especially within Congress. If it shuns these overtures the accusations of the Soviet Union may fall on more fertile ground.

Semyon Tsarapkin of the Soviet delegation told the committee Monday the United States "has exposed itself as the adversary of a peaceful settlement."

The statement by Peiping did not make prior aceptance of its demands the price for a cease-fire. It did indicate, however, that there could not be permanent peace without agreement on American withdrawal from Formosa and other Far Eastern problems.

Austin joined with others of the American view in questioning the status of the statement. "It is not addressed to the United Nations," he said. "It is not much more than a postal card would be."

Johnston Gets Nod of Senate Body

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—An hour after it began hearings Monday the Senate's Banking and Currency Committee voted unanimously to recommend confirmation of Eric Johnston as head of the Nation's Economic Stabilization Agency. Johnston, who replaces Alan Valentine, ousted from the ESA generalship by President Truman last week, is expected to be confirmed by the Senate in a day or so.

Eric Johnston

The Senate Committee's speedy action was sparked by a telegram from Burnet R. Maybank, Democratic Senator of South Carolina and Committee Chairman, who wired from a sick-bed in Key West, Fla., he wanted to be registered in favor of prompt action on the matter.

Sen. Maybank telegraphed he "would not delay price fixing for one day although the President has delayed it six months and brought the country to the brink of ruinous inflation."

While the confirmation of Johnston's appointment was under debate on the Hill, White House aides were in conference with economic advisers to Charles E. Wilson, mobilization chief, on the preparation of an executive order investing Johnston with powers commensurate with his responsibilities as economic boss

Mr. Truman also announced the appointment of a five-member "Materials Policy Commission" headed by William S. Paley, Chairman of the Board of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

U. S. Aerial Espionage Charged by Czechs

PRAGUE, Jan. 22—(AP)—Czechoslovakia charged Monday the United States has been spying on her territory from the air.

Prague Radio said the Czechoslovak Foreign Ministry delivered a protest note to the United States alleging U. S. military planes violated the Czech frontier 58 times between last October and Jan. 13.

The broadcast quoted the note as saying these violations were considered "acts of aerial espionage."

Dulles on Way To Tokyo for Treaty Talks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP)—John Foster Dulles left for Tokyo Monday to speed the completion of a peace treaty with a bid to the Japanese to join the free world in meeting "new armed aggression."

Dulles voiced confidence, the Japanese people, "Now that their militaristic ambitions have been buried," will become worthy members of the free world and share its "common purpose to surmount the dangers."

Accompanied by a group of State and Defense Department officials, Dulles plans a series of talks with Japanese leaders to clear the way for a final peace settlement before the end of the year. The group is due at Tokyo at 5 p. m. Wednesday (Japanese Time).

Dulles was named by President Truman to negotiate the treaty. He is Republican Foreign Affairs Adviser to Secretary of State Acheson.

The United States wants a treaty without limitation on Japanese rearmanent, giving Japan the chance to take an active part in its own defense if the Japanese decide to abandon or modify the no-more-war policy they wrote into their postwar Constitution.

Washington Views Red Reply As Insult to Intelligence

By JAMES RESTON
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—Official Washington's first reaction to Red China's latest offer of peace in Korea was: "How stupid do they think we are?"

State Department officials said flatly Monday evening that Peiping's offer—if that's what it is—was absolutely unacceptable in its present form. They added that it raised more questions than it answered and did not amount to an acceptance of the UN's offer of a cease-fire.

Officials here noted two apparent differences between Red China's original rejection of the UN's cease-fire principles and Monday's report of Peiping's position at Lake Success:

1. The Jan. 17 communication from Peiping to the UN insisted that negotiations on Formosa and other Far Eastern problems should proceed before there was an acceptable cease-fire in Korea.

Now, according to the Indian delegate at the UN, Red China was offering a "cease-fire for a limited-time period" before the start of negotiations on other Far Eastern problems.

2. The first Red China reply to the last UN peace plan insisted that the Peiping regime be brought into the United Nations as the representative of China "from the beginning of the seven-power conference" on Far Eastern problems. Now, said India's Sir Benegal Rau, Peiping was not saying specifically that it wanted in from the beginning of the conference, but that Peiping's entrance into the UN should be "ensured."

Among points raised in official quarters here were these:

Question: What is meant by a "limited cease-fire"—a few hours, a few days, a few weeks, or months or what?

Question: What safeguards would there be against a renewal of the fighting at any moment convenient to Peiping? What would happen if the UN troops began to withdraw and the Chinese "volunteers" didn't follow the "advice" of Peiping?

Question: What is meant by "ensuring" the entrance of the Peiping regime into the UN? The official view here is that if this means a promise by the U. S. to support seating Red China at Lake Success it is no concession at all.

The premise of the message Monday, as officials here see it, is virtually the same as the premise of the Jan. 17 note from Peiping: Namely, that the UN is the aggressor in Korea, and that Peiping should be rewarded for agreeing to a cease-fire. This premise, it is emphasized by U. S. officials, is wholly unacceptable.

State Department officials agreed that what Sir Benegal had to say Monday afternon must be explored, but they insist that on the record at the moment nothing of any real substance has been added as a result of India's new intervention.

Sales Tax Is Approved, Unit Test Vote Stalled

Referendum Foes Block Maneuver

Sponsors of a mandatory primary constitutional amendment played for time Monday after running into opposition so tough administration leaders feared to put the amendment to a Senate vote.

The proposed amendment would prohibit a person from running for state-wide office in the general election unless he had been nominated in a state-wide primary under the county unit system.

Opponents of the plan checked an administration maneuver for a test vote by joining with the leadership in voting to adjourn debate until Tuesday.

Floor Leader Grady Rawls' motion to adjourn in the heat of debate could easily have shown the present strength of the amendment.

Anticipating the administration

R. F. Duncan

wanted names of the "no" voters for high pressuring overnight, the opposition leadership sped the word through the Senate for all to vote with the administration on adjourning. The vote was 43-6.

One administration leader who sampled voting strength during the debate said privately action was delayed "because there is no use taking a chance on something when you can wait a day and be certain."

But Sen. Osgood Williams, of Crawfordville, an opposition leader, declared: "We've got the amendment beaten!"

Rawls said the Senate adjourned simply because it was lunchtime

Guy Connell

Vincent Jones

and there were several more speakers to be heard.

The maneuver angle was clear, however, when Spence Grayson, of Savannah, Senate President Pro Tem, asked for the "ayes" and "nayes" on Rawls' motion. Grayson and Rawls are both fighting for the amendment.

A Constitutional amendment requires approval of two-thirds of the membership. This is 36 in the Senate.

Opposition speeches as well as those for the amendment were delivered by Senators who are not representatives of "big city counties."

While some proponents declared that the fight was being caused by "carpetbaggers," "foreign-owned press," and "elements not in tune with Georgia traditions," Senators who spoke against the amendment are lifelong residents of small towns in Georgia and are descended from Confederate heroes.

Both the proponents and oppo-

Judicial 'Bah' Greets Defendant Blaming Plight on Sheep Stomach

The judge didn't completely disbelieve the story a man told in Atlanta traffic court Monday but he sent the offender to the stockade for three days and fined him $100 just the same.

Recorded Luke Arnold said the man, haled into court to answer to charges of driving under the influence, related this story:

"I lost my stomach in an operation several years ago and physicians replaced it with a sheep's stomach. Now every time I pass green grass my stomach pains me something awful and I have to take a dose of paregoric to ease the ache. That's what I had done when police arrested me on this charge."

The judge said police testimony didn't agree with the man's statement, therefore the three-day stockade sentence.

U. S. Jets Down 3 MIGs In Air Battle Over Yalu

By HOWARD HANDLEMAN

TOKYO, Jan. 23—(Tuesday)—(INS)—American and Russian-made jet fighter planes fought a huge air battle Tuesday in skies over the Yalu River border between North Korea and Red Manchuria.

A U. S. Fifth Air Force announcement said "at least three" Russian MIG-15 jets were shot down by American F-81 Thunderjets in what was "possibly the largest and greatest" air battle of the Korean campaign.

Early reports failed to indicate the number of planes involved in the battle, fought within sight of Chinese observers in Manchuria.

On the ground United Nations troops in central Korea killed 200 of an estimated 2,000 North Korean infiltrators Monday in a sudden flareup of action southeast of Tanyang near the Han River.

The battle was reported in the U. S. Eighth Army's Tuesday morning communique which said that "aggressive" Allied patrols in all other front sectors gained little or no contact with the enemy.

Tank-led patrols raced along the Han River invasion corridor below Seoul in a vain search for upwards of 120,000 Chinese troops previously reported massing in areas south of the Red-held South Korean capital.

The communique reported United Nations troops advanced to positions in three areas near Suwon late Monday without encountering any Red opposition.

These patrols stabbed to points five miles south and six miles southwest and southeast of Suwon, which lies 13 miles south of Seoul.

Other United Nations forces reached Ipori, nine miles northeast of Ichon, and patrolled the Yoju sector without contacting enemy troops. Ichon and Yoju are nine miles apart on the Suwon-Wonju highway.

Chinese forces were mysteriously absent from the vital west coast river sectors, but fierce fighting was reported at key points along an arcing 80-mile front from near the west coast through the Wonju bulge to Yongwol in the east.

Armored United Nations task forces smashed their way into the junction town of Ichon, and under the eyes of the Eighth Army's commander took the Wonju airstrip and bomb and shell-pocked heights commanding it.

Other UN forces farther west retook Kumyangjang and Osan without opposition, but veteran Seventh Division infantrymen were forced out of Yongwol, Korea's mining capital, by decimated North Korean infiltrators fighting fanatically to escape annihilation.

A Seventh Division patrol withdrew from the Tungsten mining center early Monday, and relief columns were ambushed near the city.

Eighth Army censorship permitted identification of the Seventh Division for the first time since the evacuation of Hungnam on North Korea's east coast.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, who visited the Wonju sector and saw his former company capture a key hill, told newsmen:

U. S. To Open 6th Air Base In England

LONDON, Jan. 22—(AP)—The United States Air Force will open its sixth big English base in March, the British Air Ministry announced Monday. The field is Sealand, Cheshire, 180 miles northwest of London.

Both the Ministry and U. S. Air Headquarters declined details, but it was reported that up to 3,000 airmen will be sent to man the field as an aircraft engine maintenance center. It was used for this purpose by the Royal Air Force during World War II.

The maintenance personnel, together with 3,000 antiaircraft gunners expected here in the next few weeks, will increase U. S. Air Force strength in England to around 21,000 men.

The Americans are expected to use Sealand Field for servicing bomber and fighter aircraft engines. The U. S. Air Force now has three B-29 and B-50 bomber groups and one group of F-84 jet fighters suitable for bomber escort stationed in England.

A rapidly-spreading fire Monday night swept through three residential buildings at 364, 366, and 370 Fraser St., S. E., police said. Ptl. H. K. Muller and B. M. Fowler said damage to the three houses would amount to almost $3,000.

Legislators Recommend 3 Pct. Levy

By M. L. ST. JOHN

The House Ways and Means Committee Monday night recommended passage of an all-inclusive 3 percent retail sales tax designed to raise between $75,000,000 and $90,000,000.

The bill is patterned after the Tennessee plan, and is "tougher" than the 1947 sales tax proposal pased by the House and killed in the Georgia Senate. The Committee vote was 21 to 3.

After pausing to announce its action on the sales tax, the Committee plunged back into work, attempting to bring out other bills in the "total tax revision program" before the House schedules debate on any of them.

Chairman Jack Ray said he anticipates committee action Tuesday morning on a bill to repeal approximately 150 nuisance taxes, including drivers' licenses and hunting and fishing license fees.

He said it is likely that the Committee will be ready to make recommendations by Tuesday night on the bill to scale income taxes upward.

Ray did not anticipate House debate on the sales tax for Tuesday. However, he did predict House action this week.

The House Constitutional Amendments Committee No. 2 did not act Tuesday afternoon on an administration proposal to abolish the state property tax.

The proposed Sales Tax would apply to almost everything except feed, seed, fertilizers and insecticides bought by farmers. It would tax the tools and equipment purchased by the farmer, and it would tax the tools and equipment purchased by mills to manufacture products. It would not tax the raw products used by the mills, however.

Under the bill, the tax would apply to purchases made by the city, county, and state government, itself. It would tax amusements, telephone service, utilities, and hotel rooms.

It would not apply to such services as cleaning and pressing, laundering, auto washing, and tire repairing.

A dispute had occurred in the Ways and Means Committee over whether to adopt a proposal drafted by State Auditor B. E. Thrasher, Jr., which was not this strong and which would produce between $45,000,000 and $60,000,000, or the more stringent proposal. Gov. Talmadge favored the more inclusive proposal, which was drafted by Director William Lester of the State Tax Revision Committee. The Thrasher draft would not have taxed machinery and tools used in the production of manufactured goods.

That Clouding Up Could Be Rain

It's working up to a "likely r. in, according to the Weather Bureau.

Partly cloudy and slightly warmer—a 52 high following a 33 low—was forecast for Tuesday.

Considerable cloudiness, mild temperatures and "likely" light rain are expected Wednesday when the weatherman said the mercury will range from a morning's low of 40 to a day's high of 55. Monday's range was from 29 to 48 degrees.

Curtis Taylor in Solitary After Tattnall Outburst

By KEELER McCARTNEY

REIDSVILLE, Jan. 23—"Bad Boy" Curtis Taylor, of Atlanta, early Tuesday sulked in a solitary confinement cell after staging a "one-man riot" Sunday that shattered the quiet of visiting hours in the immaculate halls of Tattnall State Prison.

Taylor said his show was put on to "get an investigation started down here and show the folks what is going on."

Warden R. P. Balkcom dismissed the incident as "the antics of an incorrigible prisoner . . . who abused the visiting privilege because he was irked over not being allowed to receive mail from his girl friend and because he soon is to report to a new camp for incorrigibles at Buford."

Taylor, who engaged in a brief set-to with a guard Saturday, walked into the visiting room Sunday to see his mother. Prison officials said dozens of other inmates were seated at a long table talking with relatives and friends.

Leaping onto the table, Taylor ripped off his shirt and raced from one end to the other shouting: "Just look at these bruises. This is a sample of what they do down here. I want you to look. They may kill me tonight. But look!"

Several visiting women almost fainted, Balkcom said, while others fled from the visiting room. He added Taylor continued to shout while guards led him from the room.

Guard R. F. Hightower said in a written report that Taylor asked permission Saturday afternoon to visit another cell and get a radio.

"I had unlocked the door to see what he wanted," Hightower declared. "Then I told him prisoners were not allowed to visit in the cells. He told me nobody but a no-good so-and-so would have a job like mine. He lunged at me and as I kicked him off, I saw two other men coming out of the cell at me.

"I slammed the door on them and then ran to get my walking stick—the only weapon inside guards carry.

"He lunged at me again and I struck at him twice. He quit and I put him back in the cell."

Balkcom said an examination

Ike Report On Europe Awaited

Wherry Position Takes New Tack

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—The Administration arranged Monday for the Supreme Commander of Europe's defense, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, to report next week to Congress as well as to the President on Europe's need for American help.

Coincidentally, the principal antagonist of the President's prospective dispatch of American troops to stand guard along with the Europeans, Sen. Wherry, of Nebraska, moved to postpone the showdown upon which earlier he had been insisting.

Wherry, Senate Republican Floor Leader, withdrew his demand that the Senate vote "up or down" Tuesday his resolution proposing to admonish President Truman to make no commitments without the advance consent of Congress.

He proposed instead that the same resolution be referred to two Senate committees for further study but that these committees be given extraordinarily severe and detailed instructions to come forward with a recommendation by Feb. 2.

This would be after the scheduled return to the United States of Gen. Eisenhower with his recommendations as to what force would be required to help hold Europe against the Russians.

Wherry contended that he had changed merely his tactics and not his position, though he conceded the adoption of the alternative he was now putting forward would mean a delay in any ultimate decision by the Senate.

To a point what he now sought was just the thing the Administration's foreign policy spokesman, Sen. Connally, Democrat, Texas, himself had been insisting upon:

That nothing be done by the Senate collectively until the Wherry manifesto had first been put under the consideration of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Beyond this point, however, Wherry and Connally still were wholly apart. For the new Wherry resolution would seek to give jurisdiction not simply to the Foreign Relations Committee, of which Connally is Chairman, but to the Armed Services Committee as well—a dual jurisdiction.

Moreover, Wherry, in his new text, sought to write in instructions to the effect that the two committees, if put in charge of his resolution, were not to propose any substitute for it but were simply to approve it or disapprove it.

Sen. Connally challenged the validity of any such orders, unless they were specifically laid down by the Senate itself.

Left for a solution Tuesday was the question whether a mere act of referring the resolution to one or more committees would be enough to bind those committees to the stipulations Wherry had sought to impose.

The essential fact was that Wherry, who had received few public pledges of Republican support for his project, was shifting ground in his attack, though not abandoning it.

Gen. Eisenhower, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn told reporters, probably will meet with Congress in the Library of Congress. The date was left open; probably it will be next Tuesday or Wednesday.

West To Give Tough Notes To Kremlin

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(U.P.)—The Western Powers will deliver parallel notes to Russia Tuesday, agreeing to a meeting of Big Four deputies only if the talks are broadened to cover other East-West sore points in addition to Germany.

High diplomatic informants said the American, British and French "put up or shut up" notes will reject any idea of restricting negotiations to Germany. This was the gist of a year-end Russian proposal.

The replies will agree to preliminary talks by deputy foreign ministers in London or Paris only if the Kremlin will give concrete promises to widen the proposed meeting. Matters to go on the agenda include the long-delayed Austrian Peace Treaty, United Nations problems, and East-West tensions in Germany and other areas.

Germans Inform Ike Morale Hinges on U. S. Force There

By DREW MIDDLETON

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

FRANKFURT, Germany, Jan. 22—Urgent need for swift reinforcement of the United States forces in Germany and for shipment of new heavy arms and material to the units already here has been impressed upon Gen. Eisenhower during his stay in Germany.

During his talks with American military and civilian officials and in his conversations Monday night with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, and his military advisors, ex-generals Hans Speidel and Adolf von Heusinger, the Supreme Commander was informed that the strengthening of American forces is essential to a rise in German morale and to general European security during the difficult period when North Atlantic treaty organization defenses are being rebuilt.

It is understood that four United States divisions are to be sent to Germany but that the timing of their arrival has been upset by events in the Far East. American staff officers and officials here hope that at least one of these divisions can arrive in Germany before Summer.

Officers at the European command headquarters also made it plain to the supreme commander that the Seventh United States Army's efficiency would be greatly increased by re-equipment in such items as tanks, artillery and vehicles and in telephone and radio equipment.

A scheduled formal meeting with the three high commissioners, John J. McCloy, of the United States, Sir Ivone Kirkpatrick, of Britain and Andre Francois-Poncet, of France, was cancelled. Instead, Gen. Eisenhower talked with the trio informally at McCloy's home.

The McCloy home was also the scene of a reception Monday night. Gen. Eisenhower chatted with Chancellor Adenauer and other government leaders and members of the Socialist party leadership.

Gen. Eisenhower talked first with Chancellor Adenauer, whom he impressed as a "man of conviction and sincerity" and then with Erich Ollenauer, deputy head of the Social Democratic party. After that, Dr. Theodor Blank, head of the German delegation to the military committee, and former German Generals Heusinger and Speidel were led in to meet the supreme commander.

To a man the Germans were impressed with Gen. Eisenhower's personality and it appeared that his staccato sentences on the urgency of the European situation and the need for unity and strength had impressed them.

Patience Worn Out, He Gets Divorce

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 22—(AP)—A Kearney man applied Monday for a divorce from his wife, claiming she deserted him 33 years ago—one month after their wedding on April 1, 1917.

"Why did you wait so long to apply for a divorce?" the court asked.

"I had hoped she would come back to me," replied Charles J. Sotile.

Divorce granted, the court ruled.

5-Ton Stone Pins Woman In Bedroom

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Jan. 22 (AP)—Frantic rescue workers dug an elderly spinster out from under a five-ton boulder Monday after it had tumbled off a hillside into her little frame house.

Miss Bess Christy, about 60, had been pinned from the waist down for several hours—all night, she said.

She was brought to a hospital here with a broken pelvis and wrist, suffering from shock and exposure.

Dr. H. V. Lusher estimated she had been under the rock about two hours before a railroad section foreman heard her cries about 8:30 a. m.

It was more than two hours before rescue workers could block up the boulder with a crowbar, truck jacks and rope, then dig away the flooring and pull her loose.

Miss Bess was conscious through the ordeal.

"It's mashing me to pieces," she cried out once.

"I'm cold," she murmured another time.

The mercury had been down to 20. Hot water bottles were placed around her. Dr. Lusher said she was nearly frozen.

"Ouch, you're hurting me," she cried when the rescuers finally eased her out from under the flat, eight-foot square stone.

The four-room house at Lesage, ten miles north of here, was a shambles. The boulder had crashed through the side of the house into the bedroom, landing on the bed.

State police, Sheriff's deputies and volunteers gathered quickly when Charles Raney, the railroad worker, spread an alarm after hearing the cries for help. Paul Price, Huntington contractor, estimated the boulder weighed five tons.

Wac Slain; Husband Held

BOSTON, Jan. 22—(UP)—The body of a married Wac, her head smashed by several blows, was found in her Dorchester apartment Monday and a few hours later police arrested her husband, who allegedly confessed slaying her.

Sgt. Martha Tenters, 30, mother of a two-year-old son, was found beneath several blood-saturated blankets. Her husband, Anthony, also 30, was seized near police headquarters, where he was going to surrender, police said.

"I did it, sure, take me," Tenters was quoted by Det. Francis O'Riley, one of four arresting officers.

O'Riley said Tenters was booked on a charge of suspicion of murder and that a more serious charge would be brought after additional questioning.

Alpine Death Toll Increases to 234

By MARVIN STONE

VIENNA, Jan. 23—(Tuesday)—(INS)—The death toll in the most disastrous chain of Alpine snow avalanches rose to 234 Tuesday and the officials considered using a British mountain-top airlift to supply 48,000 persons marooned in western Austria.

Fresh snow and ice slides were reported Monday and authorities feared the death toll for Austria, Switzerland and Italy may go even higher. Hundreds are still missing.

At midnight, Austria counted 127 dead, Switzerland 77, and Italy 30.

The Austrian provinces of Vorarlberg, Tyrol, Carinthia and Salzburg struggled to restore communications ripped by solid walls of "white death" which have rolled off the mountain sides for three days.

The Tyrolean capital of Innsbruck, with a population of 100,000, will be without regular water supplies for the next six days.

In the outskirts of Badgastein, international resort city frequented by numerous American and British winter tourists, 14 persons were reported to have perished under 60 feet of snow.

An army of 11,000 U. S., British and French occupation personnel and Austrian police has been mobilized to extricate inhabitants of about 30 Austrian villages isolated by the snow slides.

The airlift offer was made by the British occupation commander in Austria as all U. S. technical services, French occupation troops and two battalions of British occupation forces were ordered into the battle to extricate snow-bound communities and restore ripped communications.

Many Americans and Britons are at Austrian and Swiss winter resorts cut off by the avalanches.

Near the Austrian town of Heiligenblut, 70 laborers were trapped at a camp on 12,461-foot high Gross Glockner mountain when an avalanche struck. Several were reported killed but the rest fought their way down the mountain side to safety.

Never Red, Remington Takes Oath

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—William W. Remington denied flatly under oath Monday that he ever was a member of the Communist party.

The former Commerce Department employee took the stand in his own defense as his perjury trial entered its fifth week in federal court before Judge Gregory F. Noonan and a jury of seven women and five men.

The tall, sandy-haired, 33-year-old defendant was the tenth defense witness to testify. It is charged that he lied in denying under oath to a federal grand jury that he ever was a member of the party.

He told the court, in response to questions by William C. Chanler, defense counsel, that he had stated "many times" under oath that he never was a member of the Communist party, and that he had so stated before the grand jury last May 25.

He told the court that as a high school student in Ridgewood, N. J. he didn't remember having any clearly defined economic or political beliefs, and added that he was a "strong supporter" of the Republican party because his parents and relatives had always been.

Remington said he had had a religious education, and that his mother introduced him to the Oxford Group, the moral rearmament movement of Frank N. D. Buchchanan, which, he added, had a "strong effect" on his outlook.

He testified that he entered Dartmouth as a youth of 16 in 1934. In his freshman year, Remington said, his political views "moved left quite rapidly," and he told the court he came to believe in extensive government ownership and control of industry, but with "no well-defined concept of what that meant."

He testified that he was also anti-Fascist, devoted to concepts of racial equality, the split-up of big business, and "highly progressive income taxes," and that he saw in labor unions the answer to what was "unchristian" in society.

Remington said he expressed and advocated these doctrines "extensively and loudly," and that he was sure he was called "a Communist" as a result.

"Were you a Communist then?" asked Chanler.

"No," the witness replied.

Quads' Gift Of $29,000 Saves Home

Milk Firm Aids Michigan Father

PONTIAC, Mich., Jan. 22—(AP)—The 12-day-old Rosebush quadruplets, whose stonemason father is about to lose his home because of a delinquent mortgage, came to his financial rescue Monday—$29,000 worth.

William Hartman, Pontiac attorney and a guardian of the quads, announced a contract had been signed with the Pet Milk Company to permit it to use pictures and names of the babies in its advertisements for 10 years.

The company will pay $3,000 immediately "for housing," and $2,000 "for a trust fund," Hartman said. The remaining $24,000 will be paid at the rate of $200 a month for the next 10 years.

The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rosebush of nearby Oakwood. They have four daughters besides the two boys and two girls born Jan. 10.

A scheduled foreclosure of the Rosebush home was postponed a week last Friday. The Lapeer Savings Bank holds a $3,200 mortgage on the eight-room house and Rosebush is behind $461 in $32-a-month payments.

Rosebush has expressed a desire to sell the home and get a larger one.

Atlanta's new Armed Forces Guild has a game room—but lacks equipment for two of the serviceman's favorite games.

Mrs. Constance Butler, secretary, issued an appeal Monday for a billiard table and a ping pong table. She said the lounge, located at 253 Peachtree St., N. E., already had sufficient small, mobile games such as checkers.

Mrs. Butler also suggested persons with theater or concert tickets they don't plan to use notify the staff of the lounge. She said they always could find some serviceman who would like to use them.

Mrs. Butler or members of her staff can be contacted by calling ALpine 4977.

GET BRONZE STARS

Georgia GIs Win Awards

Two Georgians who performed heroicly under intense gunfire near Waegwan and an Atlanta major with a long record of military achievement have been awarded Bronze Stars by the First Cavalry Division in Korea.

The three are Pfc. William A. Sink, of Brookhaven; Cpl. Horace Williams, of Porterdale, and Maj. Robert E. Eaves, of Atlanta.

Pfc. Sink left a covered position on Sept. 10 and moved through heavy enemy fire to remove all wounded and prepare them for evacuation, his citation read. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Sink.

Cpl. Williams, son of Mrs. Frances Williams, single-handedly destroyed an enemy machinegun position, exposing himself to a hail of fire with complete disregard for his own safety, the citation said. Williams' action on Sept. 19 permitted the attack to continue.

Maj. Eaves, husband of Mrs. Jacqueline Eaves, of 505 St. Charles Ave., was presented his star for meritorious achievement against the enemy from July 18 to Nov. 2.

Brooklyn Man Held on Diamond Smuggling Charge

The man, Leiser Weitman of Brooklyn, was held in $100,000 bail following arraignment on the smuggling charge before U. S. Commissioner Edward E. Fay in Brooklyn Federal Court.

Customs officials said Weitman was seized Sunday at New York international airport when he alighted from a plane from Brussels. Inspectors said they found 11 small packets—each about the size of a five-blade package of razor blades—in the elevated-heel shoes Weitman was wearing.

U. S. Atty. Frank J. Parker said the cache contained 700 carats of pure white, cut gems. Parker estimated the domestic value of the stones at $280,000, but said they were worth "almost double" on the black market.

Weitman told the court he was asked to bring the gems to the U. S. by a man in a tourist hotel abroad. The man was not identified.

Solons List Substitute Road Plans

May Compromise Gholston Formula

By HOKE SMITH MAY

Two different highway allocation formulas were disclosed Monday as possible compromise measures on the Gholston Plan, under fire by administration leaders in the General Assembly.

The State Senate last week voted overwhelmingly to repeal the Gholston Formula. House action is expected shortly.

Under the first plan, being drawn by a legislator who asked that his name be withheld, State secondary road funds would be distributed to counties in much the same way that the Federal funds are allocated to states.

One-third of the total secondary road money would be allocated on the basis of total paved and unpaved rural mileage in the various counties. One-third would be distributed on the basis of rural population, and another third on the basis of paved rural secondary roads in the counties.

Rep. John Greer, an administration critic from Lanier County, devised the second plan. In presenting his formula, Greer said:

"Administration leaders complained that the Gholston Formula was too difficult to understand. This one is so simple even they should be able to understand it."

Greer's proposal would require the Highway Department to perform "some road work" in "every county in Georgia" in the two-year period after July 1.

Meanwhile, the House State of the Republic Committee approved the bill to repeal the Gholston plan.

Forsyth Train Kills 2 in Car

Constitution State News Service

FORSYTH, Jan. 22—Two men were killed and a third critically injured here Monday night when the car in which they were riding collided with a passenger train, Police Chief Paul Wilson said.

Wilson said the car collided with the Central of Georgia's Nancy Hanks at a crossing 400 yards south of the train depot. Charlie Lee Kimbell and Bob Ponder, both of Forsyth, were killed instantly, Wilson said, and Z. R. (Dutch) Jones, of Warner Robins, was rushed to a Macon hospital where his condition was described as "critical."

The car belonged to Ponder and was destroyed, Wilson said. He said he had not determined who was driving at the time of the accident, but said an investigation would be made.

Morgan Blake Better, Hospital Reports

Morgan Blake, Atlanta Journal columnist, was reported in a "slightly improved" condition Monday night at Emory University Hospital where he was taken Sunday suffering from a lung congestion.

Tax Repeal-Bill Would End Driver, Hunting, Fishing Fees

Fees for drivers' licenses and hunting and fishing licenses would be abolished under a bill being drafted by a Ways and Means subcommittee.

The full committee Monday instructed the subcommittee to prepare a bill to repeal about 150 "nuisance taxes" which bring in about $3,000,000 annually. The subcommittee was also to eliminate the hunting, fishing and drivers' license fees, but to retain a long list of business and professional licenses.

The House Constitutional Amendments Committee No. 2 took no immediate action on a proposal to abolish the State property tax.

Speaker Fred Hand spoke against the amendment which is sponsored by Gov. Talmadge. He said "this doesn't mean a split between the Governor and myself; I just don't favor repeal of the property tax."

Representatives of the County Commissioners Association and Georgia Municipalities Association asked approval of the plan.

ASSEMBLY

nents were busy Monday night tightening their lines for a showdown fight Tuesday.

Sen. Robert Stephens, of Athens, nephew of Alexander Stephens, Vice President of the Confederacy, warned that the amendment would kill the County Unit System entirely. A majority of the United States Supreme Court ruled in 1950 that the County Unit System is a "political question" because it is a rule of a political party, Stephens pointed out. When the Unit System is placed into the State Constitution, there will be another ruling from the United States Supreme Court—and Georgia will lose her unit system, he predicted.

Sen. Vincent Jones, of Jackson, said that the amendment should make an exception of the United States Senator. He said:

"Let's not fool around with the County Unit System and have it thrown out altogether." Jones said he would favor the amendment, if it didn't refer to the United States Senator.

Arguing for the amendment, Sen. Guy Connell, of Valdosta, said this is different from the proposal—beaten by the people last November—to extend the County Unit System into the general election. The people have never voted on this proposal requiring a candidate to be the nominee of a state-wide primary, he said.

"This amendment would eliminate the trouble we have with independent and write-in candidates in the general elections," Connell continued. "I wish it would apply also to candidates for the General Assembly, and eliminate write-in candidates who haven't paid any qualification fees and some of whom are running just for the publicity. The write-in method offers the opportunity for last-minute plots."

Sen. Ira Carlisle, of Cairo, said opponents of the County Unit Constitutional Amendment last November feared that the State Democratic Executive Committee might abolish primaries and would handpick nominees for the general election. The new amendment assures that there must be a primary, he said.

A grandson of a Confederate hero killed at Kennesaw Mountain, Sen. R. F. Duncan, of Lawrenceville, said the amendment could cause—rather than prevent—the election of a Communist as Governor.

"Suppose the Communist Party did finance a statewide primary in Georgia and nominated a candidate," Duncan said. "Suppose the Democratic nominee died before the general election. This amendment would make it impossible for any candidate to run against the Communist candidate, because there could be no second primary. I don't think the people want that."

Duncan said the amendment would hamper the freedom of elections. "Throughout the generations, my family always has voted the straight Democratic ticket," Duncan shouted. "But we are jealous of the privilege of voting for another party if we want to do so."

Duncan said the Legislature now is being asked to change election laws enacted less than two years ago. He obviously was referring to the Voter Re-registration and the "Early Primary Laws."

Sen. Rawls quoted Gov. Talmadge as stating "I am not trying to ram some nefarious legislation down your throats, but I am appealing to you to preserve Georgia traditions." Rawls said that control of state government must be placed in the "rural sun, where isms don't grow." He remarked that "there are more Communists within one mile of where I stand today than in all the rest of the state put together." He included an attack on the Atlanta newspapers in his speech.

Sen. Williams, who said he was born and reared near Alexander Stephens' home and "I am just as steeped in Southern tradition as any Senator," said the Senate would be "going a long ways" if it tries to tell an individual he cannot run for office. There are enough good Democrats in Georgia to beat an independent in the general election, he said, without trying to deprive anyone of his right to seek public office.

Sen. W. O. Strickland, of Buchanan, said the people should be given an opportunity to vote on the amendment.

Police Hold 2 Gordon GIs

DETROIT, Jan. 22—(AP)—Cpl. Walter Graham, 22, and Pvt. Joseph Flakner, 21, were picked up by police in suburban Dearborn Monday and held for Federal authorities.

Police said the two soldiers were AWOL from Camp Gordon, Ga., and were wanted for questioning about the theft of an officer's car. The youths also are wanted by Indiana state police for questioning about burglaries.

Patrolman Charles Kelly stopped their car on a routine check. He said they were unable to produce driver's licenses or the car registration.

Two rifles, 1,000 rounds of ammunition and a quantity of clothing were found in the car.

LOCAL BILLS

Fireworks Ban Sought In Measure

By DUPONT WRIGHT

The Richmond County delegation introduced in the Georgia House Monday a bill to ban fireworks in that county except for supervised public displays. Another new Richmond bill would take the Richmond coroner off a fee system and pay him $1,800 per year, plus a gasoline allowance of 50 gallons per month.

No local bills were introduced in the Senate, but the Senate acted favorably on a score of House bills. They now go to the Governor.

The bills would increase the salaries of Sumter County commissioners by $100 per year, increase the salary of the Americus City Court judge $4,200 per year and that of the solicitor of the same court to $2,400, create a merit system for Americus city employees and provide that the city clerk of Folkston be elected annually by the Mayor and Council.

Among the bills passed by the Senate were three affecting Thomas County. One authorizes extension of the city limits of Thomasville if a referendum approves such extension, another authorizes a bond election on the question of issuing bonds to purchase fire-fighting equipment. The third would eliminate from the Thomasville city charter a section requiring a five-year guarantee on public works let by contract.

Also passed were bills providing for the election of Charlton County commissioners for four-year terms, increasing the compensation of Americus city councilmen, increasing pension benefits of city of Americus employees, and allowing city of Pelhem to larger ad valorem tax.

Four Muscogee bills passed authorizing sale by the Columbus city commision of a parcel of land, creation for the city of Columbus of a public safety department, increase in retirement benefits of employees of the city, and authorizing it to sell that part of Seventh Street between Ninth and 10th Avenue.

Another bill would permit the sale of a portion of Stevenson Street in Camilla to the Board of Education. Another would increase the compensation of Tift County commisioners, fix the salary of the clerk of Stewart County commissioners, fix the salary of Stewart County tax commissioner at $3,000 per annum, change the time for Superior Court in Cherokee County and incorporate the city of Ida in Madison County.

HOUSE

HB 273, BURKE: Increases the salaries of the Judge and Solicitor of Waynesboro City Court from $1,800 per annum to $2,400.

HB 274, RICHMOND: Puts Coroner on salary instead of fee basis.

HB 275, MACON: Provides election of County Commissioners by districts.

HB 277, FLOYD: Authorizes Commissioners to set up a County pension system.

Capt. Blalock said he and Lt. H. C. Mayo are investigating a report that Mrs. Champion may have been shoved in front of Smith's car.

Mrs. Champion is survived by her husband, W. C. TAYLOR showed that one of the blows by Hightower caused a small bruise on Taylor's forearm, while the other struck him on the shoulder. He said before the exhibition Sunday Taylor got another prisoner to scratch him across the back with a finger nail or a piece of wire.

The flesh about the scratches on the back was not bruised, Balkcom declared, "and the scratches could not have been caused by blows." He added, however, statements were being obtained from those present.

Taylor, brought from a fourth floor cell, stoutly maintained to a reporter that the places on his back were inflicted "with a piece of iron." He said the guard resorted to the iron after breaking the stick.

Balkcom identified one of the prisoners who attempted to aid Taylor in the attack upon Hightower Saturday as Joe Lee Bishop, a long-term convict, who was convicted with John Carrigan in the Sewell Company payroll holdup at Bremen last year. Carrigan was executed for the pistol slaying of an Atlanta woman.

First convicted of burglary in 1945, Taylor escaped in 1946, 1947, 1948, 1949 and twice in 1950, records show. Fulton County officers said he was among five men who overpowered a guard at Fulton Tower and slid down a makeshift rope from the fourth floor in 1949.

Taylor was arrested Sept. 21, 1949, with Joseph and Roy Mauldin after a running gun battle with DeKalb County officers. The trio crashed an automobile at more than 100 miles an hour into a blockade set up by Atlanta officers at Memorial Drive and Candler Road, police said. Joseph Mauldin was wounded by gunfire.

The trio was among a group of prisoners who wrecked a cell block at Fulton Tower while awaiting return to Tattnall, Chief Jailer Hugh Cromer said.

While en route back to Tattnall Oct .20, Taylor and the Mauldin brothers overpowered a U. S. deputy marshal near Macon and bound him to a tree. Investigators said the prisoners had unlocked their handcuffs with a key smuggled into the Tower in a package of cigarettes.

Two women arraigned in Federal Court on charges of smuggling in the key were given probationary sentences. Balkcom said one of the stipulations of the court was that the women make no attempt to write to Taylor or the Mauldins. He added their letters since were returned.

Taylor was recaptured Nov. 1 by FBI agents and local police near the home of his parents at Phoenix City, Ala. The Mauldin brothers already were back in custody.

Welfare Official Blames Heavy Relief Rolls on U. S.

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

Georgia has "too many people on relief rolls" and is keeping them there because Federal regulations are "too liberal," a top official of the State Welfare Department told a special investigating committee of the General Assembly Monday.

C. A. Doolittle, Chief of the Finance and Statistics Division of the State Welfare Department, and the first witness called by Rep. Bush Mims' joint committee of the House and Senate, testified that administrative costs have almost doubled in the last five years, the caseload has gone up 63 percent and benefits have increased 218 percent.

Doolittle said administrative costs had zoomed from $318,293 to $609,368 since 1946.

Benefits, however, have increased from $11,262,813 to $33,709,923, Doolittle told the three Representatives and three Senators who were present at the opening session in the Welfare Department.

The average amount of money dispensed per case is $27.12 a month and administrative costs per case average $1.61, Doolittle testified.

"I read somewhere that Georgia is becoming a benevolent state," remarked Sen. Ellison Dunn, of Donalsonville. "Do you think we're in danger of that?"

"In my opinion as a finance man, we are," Doolittle replied.

"Do you think we're giving out too much money?" pursued Dunn.

"Not to the individual," Doolittle said, "But we've got too many people on the rolls."

Doolittle, in response to further questioning by the committee, said he felt Federal regulations were "too liberal." Children should be made responsible for the support of their aged parents, the finance officer said, and liens should be placed on the real estate of old age assistance recipients.

"That way," he added, "we could pay the most needy a larger amount."

Rep. Willis Smith, of Carroll, asked Doolittle detailed questions about promotions within his department and about disposing of wooden desks and acquiring steel ones at "between $150 and $200 each" and without asking for bids. Doolittle said the old desks were traded in on new steel desks, acquired at $99 each, in transactions handled through the Purchasing Department.

In answer to a question from Chairman Mims, Doolittle said an allowance for medicine was cut out of welfare budgets after the Federal Government ordered the State Department to keep its intake departments open at all times. Unable to place a ceiling on the amount of money to be spent, the department set items covered by the budget at four—food, clothing, shelter and utilities.

Director Alan Kemper, who sat in the hearing, said under the previous system Georgia had made some medicine-only allotments for oldsters who were partially supported from other sources.

Rep. J. C. Durham, of Baker, questioned Doolittle closely about welfare checks, which have increased from an average of $13 in 1946 to $27.12 estimated for June 1951. Salaries paid administrative workers range from $115 to $580, Doolittle stated.

The committee sessions will be resumed when as many as five members are free from other legislative business, Chairman Mims said. Sen. Walter Williams, and Sen. W. P. Trotter, of LaGrange, also were present Monday. Reps. J. Battle Hall, of Floyd, and Dempsey Leach, of Rockdale, were not present.

County Favors Youth Center

Fulton County Commissioners Monday night pledged their cooperation to the Buckhead Civitan Club toward completing a youth center in county-owned Bagley Park.

Commissioners, who were guests of the Buckhead group at a regular meeting, explained construction of a recreation building is impossible at the present time because of building restrictions. They agreed, however, to consider the club's proposal that one of three Negro houses remaining on the 27-acre tract be renovated to serve temporarily.

A youth committee of the Club, headed by Dr. John Mitchell, has been working several months for a youth center in North Fulton County.

Senate Committee Favors Hospital Authority Bonds

Bill Would Give $20 Million For Augusta, Milledgeville

The Senate Appropriations Committee Monday unanimously indorsed a measure to empower the State Hospital Authority to issue $20,000,000 in bonds for a new general hospital building at Augusta and for buildings and improvements at the Milledgeville State Hospital.

The measure, already passed by the House, would tag $12,000,000 for the Augusta project and $8,000,000 for Milledgeville.

The action came near the close of a legislative day in which:

1. The House adopted a resolution asking the State Patrols to raise its enrollment to 350 troopers from its 238-man forces.

2. The House voted, 112 to 10, to curb some of the power of the State Milk Control Board.

3. A House resolution was introduced to provide for 40-day annual legislative sessions and fix lawmakers' salaries at $1,200 a year plus subsistence.

Rep. Sanford Carr, of Whitfield County, who said increasing the Patrol's strength would result in a decline of more than 100 in the State's traffic toll, recommended that $650,000 in the contingent section of the appropriations bill be moved to the section which becomes effective on July 1 to finance the expansion.

The bill to curb the Milk Board's powers does not affect its price-fixing authority.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. J. Phil Campbell, Jr., of Oconee, sets up a system whereby producers and distributors may vote themselves from under the board's control. The bill also adds a seventh member, a grocer, to the board to represent retailers.

"As it is now, the board is a complete czar," said Campbell. "This bill will democratize the board. If producers and distributors don't like the way the board is running, they can take themselves from under its control."

A House committee previously killed bills to abolish the board and take away its price-fixing powers.

Rep. Hammond Johnson, of Hall, called for the 40-day session to replace the current biennial 70-day term. His plan would become effective in January, 1955, pay the Legislators $1,200 a year each and fix subsistence allowances in accordance with the living cost in Atlanta.

In other actions:

The House turned down, 83 to 40, a bill to give Superior Court judges the right to accept guilty pleas to murder charges and to impose life sentences therein. Opponents argued the bill would take away jury power and give it to solicitors and judges.

The House approved, 154 to 7, a proposed Constitutional Amendment giving the Legislature power to decide whether a majority or plurality vote is needed to expand membership of a local governing body.

As now required, additional members must be elected by a majority of registered voters. The measure was sponsored by the Muscogee delegation.

Sen. Osgood Williams introduced a bill providing a first offense penalty for drunken driving of $200 or six months' confinement, or both. The second offense would hike the penalty to six months in a work camp and a third conviction would call for six months at hard work and five years' suspension of driving license.

The Senate got a bill which would limit the issuance of liquor licenses to one member of each family.

The Senate Public Health Committee put its okay on a bill by Sen. Marcus Mashburn, of Cumming, which would transfer the care and treatment of crippled children from the Public Welfare Department to the Public Health Department.

The committee also voted to report favorably on a bill by Sen. G. Elliott Hagan, of Sylvania, which would create an agency to care for and cure chronic alcoholics. Hagan's bill would take the habitual alcoholics out of the prisons and hospitals and set up a separate agency for treating them.

The Governor's $189,667,000 appropriations bill formally was introduced in the House and was referred to committee.

Other House bills would create a constitutional State Medical Education Board to provide medical scholarships, and provide for distribution of automobile tags by the counties instead of at the State Capitol.

House Okays Runaway Parents' Bill

What Fulton Rep. Luther Alverson called "the easiest crime in the world to commit—the abandonment of little children"—might become a hard trick to turn after all.

The House Monday passed and sent on to the Senate a bill which would enable Georgia, under a reciprocal arrangement with other states, to track down runaway parents and collect money for the support of their children.

Known as the "Fugitive Fathers' Bill," the measure, which Alverson introduced and pushed through without a dissenting vote, also declares mothers to be liable for the support of children under 17 if the fathers are dead, disabled or missing.

Either parent, under Alverson's bill, "if possessed of sufficient means or able to earn such means" may be required to pay a fair and reasonable sum to the support of children. The bill provides civil procedure for collecting support money in other States instead of hauling the runaway parent back to Georgia and putting him in jail.

Jones Blasts Talmadge Aim To Ban Funds

Rep. Rufus V. Jones, of Bartow County, Monday accused the Talmadge administration of "doing all it can" to absorb all the authority of counties in their joint dealings with the State.

Jones, in a statement to the Cartersville Tribune-News, said he believes Gov. Herman Talmadge's proposal to ban state funds from non-segregated schools is unconstitutional.

But, he said, he thinks it also is a threat to force counties to approve the proposed school building authority.

Such authority, Jones said, is one of the moves the adminstration has to sap power from the counties.

Talmadge has proposed an authority to issue bonds to build new schools, which would be leased to counties.

Pilot on B-36 Flight Is Graduate of GMA

First Lt. Clarence Horton, Jr., one of the pilots who flew B-36 bombers nonstop from England to Ft. Worth, Texas, is the son of Col. and Mrs. C. F. Horton of Avondale Estates, who admit they are "very proud" of their offspring.

Noting her son's picture on the front page of The Constitution Monday, Mrs. Horton laughingly commented:

"He looks happy—but he needs a shave!"

Lt. Horton

Since the picture was made just after the flight which took 30 hours and 16 minutes, Mrs. Horton said she guessed the beard was excusable.

She said more than a dozen people called her to tell her about the picture before her husband brought in the paper.

Lt. Horton attended Georgia Military Academy for three years and was graduated in 1940. He was graduated from West Point with his pilot wings in June, 1946.

Described by his mother as an "army brat," he was born at Langley Field, Va. His father, now retired, was a command pilot in the U. S. Air Force.

Lt. Horton has been stationed at Carswell Air Base in Ft. Worth since 1948. Although his parents did not know he was making the round-trip flight to England, they suspected it because the papers mentioned his squadron and his commanding officer.

Lt. Horton is married and has two children, Clarence Horton, III, and Walter French Horton. His brother, Cyrus Horton, lives in Decatur.

VA Can't Lend Slaton to ESA

A Regional Director for Atlanta's new Economic Stabilization Agency office was lacking Monday, after John M. Slaton, Jr., District Manager of the Veterans' Administration office here, turned down a "loan" appointment as Acting ESA local chief.

ESA last week made a premature announcement in Washington, D. C., that Slaton was being "borrowed" from the VA to serve as Acting ESA Director for 60 to 90 days while the new agency was being set up.

Slaton at that time said he had received no official notice from either VA or ESA. Monday the VA's Washington office advised Slaton he "could not be spared."

A permanent ESA Regional Director is expected to be announced in Washington soon.

Russians Asked To Return Distorted U. S. Movies

By JAY WALZ
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—The United States has asked the Soviet Government to stop showing, and to return "to the rightful owner" two American motion pictures recently put on view in Moscow.

The films, "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" are being presented to Russian audiences in "mutilated and distorted" versions to serve Soviet propaganda purposes, Michael J. McDermott, State Department press officer, told reporters.

The request transmitted to the Soviet Foreign Office, however, simply noted that both pictures, dating from the 1930's, were the property of Columbia Pictures Corporation, and had not been authorized for exhibition in Russia.

The Russians, according to the State Department, have been showing the two films as "trophies of war" captured in Germany. Officials here aren't sure whether Germans or Russians "distorted" the pictures, but they feel certain both "Mr. Smith" and "Mr. Deeds" are now used to show Russians that Americans are "money-mad" and "corrupt."

"Mr. Deeds," a 1936 picture starring Gary Cooper, is a story about a small town fellow who gets a million dollars handed to him, and heads for the big city. There he is confronted by evildoers who try to get his money away from him.

In the Soviet version, the picture ends with Mr. Deeds being taken from his girl and committed to an insane asylum because he wants to spend his fortune helping poor farmers who lost their land in the American financial depression.

But as State officials recalled the picture, the original Hollywood version ended happily, with Mr. Deeds getting not only the girl, but an acquittal from the judge before whom he was brought on sanity charges.

"You are not only sane," the Judge said, in the film commenting on Mr. Deed's desire to do good, "But you are the sanest man I have ever known. Case dismissed."

"Mr. Smith," starring Jimmy Stewart, depicts the troubles of a freshman senator who, upon his arrival in Washington, finds himself up against, and fighting, corrupt politics.

Official reports did not disclose in what way "Mr. Smith" was distorted in the Soviet showing.

The American note protesting showing of the films in Russia, was transmitted to the Soviet Foreign Office by Ambassador Alan G. Kirk on Jan. 17. There has been no reply, nor report as to whether Moscow theaters have stopped showing the films.

Officials said the State Department acted in the matter at the request of the Motion Picture Producers Association.

Acheson Top Foe of Reds —Douglas

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 22—(AP). Sen. Douglas, Democrat, Illinois, Monday night defended the foreign policy position of Secretary of State Acheson, saying "since Korea he and Mr. Truman have been the strongest opponents aggressive Communism has had."

Douglas, in what he described as his first public defense of Acheson, declared that "Acheson's attitude is one of uncompromising opposition to aggression by the Chinese Reds and Communists elsewhere."

"His attitude has been misunderstood," the Senator added.

Douglas asserted in his speech that in the struggle against Communism "we should seek protection in strength and not in weakness." He declared:

"It is better to deal with aggression in its earliest stages before it gathers too great a momentum—to check it before the tidal wave has gone too far."

The Senator pointed out that "wherever there is a vacuum, a weakness, Soviet Russia has struck. But where the West has asserted its strength, Russia has tended to back up."

Douglas told a packed audience of some 900 in the United Church that "we have tried as best we could to bring peace to the world, but we face a police state that seems by its actions and philosophies to be committed to a policy of world domination."

'I'd Climb' Even Wins The Censors

A stand, unique in the annals of the Johnson Office, formerly the Hays Office, was taken here Monday when a representative of the Motion Picture Association of America went "all out" in support of a movie — "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain," which will be premiered at the Paramount Feb. 6.

Arthur De Bra

Arthur De Bra Director of Community Relations of Johnston Office, said "It is one of the greatest audience pictures ever made."

De Bra, in Atlanta to contact ministers and civic leaders, said this marks the first time the Association, which acts as a censor board to regulate the morals of movies, had actively supported a movie in its presentation throughout the country.

"This movie portrays faithfully what happened in the early days of our country. It shows how we became a religious people and why 'In God We Trust' is placed on all of our coins.

De Bra is a former associate of Lamar Trotti, author and producer of "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain," "Wilson" and other hits.

Both were members of the Motion Picture Association when it was the Hays office.

13 Injured In Car, Gun, Other Mishaps

Automobile accidents, guns and a fire sent several injured persons Monday to Grady Hospital for treatment.

Four school children were included in the six persons injured in a two-car smashup at Bates Ave. and Ridgedale Rd., N. E.

James Lee Williams, Jr., 13, and his 10-year-old brother, Jeff, were treated for head injuries they suffered when the car in which their mother, Mrs. J. L. Williams, of 2154 Boulevard Dr., N. E., was carrying them to school collided with another schoolward bound auto, police said. Mrs. Williams also was treated for shock and bruises.

Two other school children, Patsy Waddell, 13, and her six-year-old sister, Delores Claudette, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Waddell, of 2392 Oakview Rd., N. E., were injured in the other car. The two girls suffered cuts and bruises of the head and hands. Their mother also suffered shock and bruises.

A smashup on Bankhead Ave. sent three Lithia Springs youths to the hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises.

Their car rammed into the rear of a parked truck in the 1000 block of Bankhead Ave., N. W., police said. The victims were listed as James W. Cole, 18; William R. Kite, 16, and Henry E. Lee, 17.

Mrs. Daniel Byrd, 38, wife of a city traffic policeman, was injured in an automobile accident at Gilbert St. and Confederate Ave. She suffered ankle and hip injuries.

Harry Phillip Aurandt, 13-year-old son of Harry Aurandt, parole officer at the Atlanta Federal Prison, was treated for an air rifle wound in the left ear, and Edward W. Murner, 28, of Morrow, was admitted for treatment of a gunshot wound in the right leg.

Charles N. Coker, 48, of 2319 Venetian Dr., S. W., suffered painful burns of the knee, arm and hands in a fire which heavily damaged his home.

Mrs. Read described construction, now under way, of a new $623,000 YWCA building at Edgewood Avenue and Ivy Street.

Federal Jury Rules Pearson Free of Libel

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(U.P.)—A Federal Court jury ruled Monday night that Columnist-Commentator Drew Pearson told the truth when he charged former California Attorney General Fred N. Howser accepted a $1,200 bribe.

The jury found Pearson not guilty in a $350,000 libel suit brought against him by the former Republican state official. Howser sued because a broadcast Pearson made Sept. 12, 1948, accused Howser of taking the bribe from a "well-known Long Beach gambler."

The nine-woman, three-man jury was polled individually after their four and one-half hour deliberation. They unanimously answered "yes" to a series of questions posed them by the judge. One was:

"Has the defendant (Pearson) established that the statement made by him concerning the plaintiff (Howser) was true?"

Answering other questions put by Judge Alexander Holtzoff, the jury members agreed Pearson made the statement without malice, that Howser suffered no financial damages, and that Pearson did not act with "wanton, reckless and willful disregard of the plaintiff's rights."

Pearson said he felt "vindicated and delighted," and that the decision was "for the freedom of the press."

Howser was not present to hear the jury's finding. His attorney, Roger Robb, said he had not decided whether to appeal.

Liberalized Rent Raises Spur Repair Permits

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Recent liberalization of rent raises allowed for improvements to properties has skyrocketed applications for repair permits, William R. Wofford, City Building Inspector, said

Wofford and Councilman John A. White, Chairman of Council's committee spearheading a five-year drive to eliminate substandard dwellings, hailed the increase as an indication property owners are anxious to make their properties more livable.

Declaring there was a definite increase since the action, Wofford released figures showing that 72 permits to repair sub-standard dwellings were issued by his office through Jan. 19, this year, compared to only 28 for the corresponding period last year.

"This means the incentive provided by rent control officials in permitting owners to amortize such outlays in from five to seven years is paying off," Wofford said. "It was a wise action and will do much to relieve housing conditions in Atlanta unless we become involved in another war and materials are frozen tightly. The 1951 record to date is an excellent one considering the fact building materials generally face a freeze."

White said, "Our trouble has been that under the old allowance schedule owners could not get enough out of added rents to pay interest on the required investment in some instances. The new schedule has changed this. Barring much tighter restrictions, we should make real progress in our efforts to improve 30,000 remaining dwelling units in Atlanta."

Wofford said 3,483 buildings have been repaired since the program was inaugurated in 1948 and 9,419 inspections have been made by his department.

Radio Urged

George M. (Pup) Phillips, Civil Defense Director, will urge two-way radios for all motor equipment of the Atlanta Fire Department. He said he will appear before the Atlanta Board of Firemasters at 8 p. m. next Monday and file the formal request. Phillips said approximately half the equipment now has radio facilities, but it is imperative that all have such facilities if Atlanta was attacked.

Special Meeting

Faced with the prospect of having to dig up another $320,000 if the Georgia Legislature passes a blanket three percent sales tax bill without exempting purchases by local governments, Ald. L. O. Moseley, Chairman of Council's Purchasing Committee, has set a special meeting for 1 p. m. Tuesday, Feb. 6, when bids will be opened on large quantities of City supplies and equipment. Moseley said he will attempt to make as many needed purchases as possible before a sales tax is clamped on. Meantime, Thomas W. Clift, School Business Manager, said such a tax would cost schools upwards of another $18,000 for the year and also moved to buy school needs as quickly as possible. A review of the sales tax proposal showed that if a tax is required on City and school purchases the cost would amount to approximately $320,000 for the year unless purchases are made before the sales tax becomes operative.

Mtn. View Asks Annexing To Hapeville

Residents of Mountain View are seeking annexation into Hapeville, Mayor Rex Reeves Monday night told Hapeville City Council.

Reeves said citizens of the Mountain View area had requested him to invite members of the Hapeville Council to attend a meeting at Mountain View to discuss the annexation proposal.

Hapeville sought to annex Mountain View section several years ago, the Mayor said, but the proposal was defeated by Mountain View residents. He attributed the change to Hapeville's expanding police, fire and sanitary operations.

In other actions the Council decided to charge basketball teams practicing in the city's recreation building $2 per hour. High school teams will be excepted. Group also authorized installation of two telephones and construction of partitions in the recreation building for use by the city's civil defense organization.

OPEN HOUSE AT NEW PATHOLOGY LABORATORIES
Miss Willard Jurney, Medical Technologist, Shows Equipment to Frank Wilson, center, and Dr. R. A. Vonderlehr

NEW PROCEDURES

Laboratory Opened Here As a Model

A new procedure for measuring blood sugar and a rapid method of measuring the amount of protein in blood were among the scientific techniques demonstrated at the formal opening here Monday of model clinical pathology laboratories.

The laboratories, located in the old transportation building at Piedmont Ave. and Armstrong St., N. E., will be operated under the joint auspices of Grady Hospital, Emory University and the Communicable Disease Center, U. S. Public Health Service.

Dr. R. A. Vonderlehr, medical director in charge, Communicable Disease Center, said the laboratories would be "a base for a nation-wide effort to improve the tests available in the country's more than 6,000 laboratories."

Dr. Vonderlehr, Dr. Hugh Wood, dean of the Emory University School of Medicine, and Frank Wilson, superintendent of Grady Hospital, were hosts at the open house attended by doctors, medical technologists and other interested persons.

Wilson said Dr. F. W. Sunderman, chief of the clinical pathology service at Grady Hospital, had developed and perfected many of the methods and instruments to be used in the laboratories.

Dr. Sunderman explained the new procedure for measuring blood sugar was "truer, quicker and more economical" than some other methods. He also explained a quick method for measuring proteins in serum or blood.

The first research project conducted in the laboratories will be a study of methods for estimating the hemoglobin content of the blood.

Dr. Vonderlehr explained objectives of the new pathology laboratories were (1) to develop, through research, more reliable methods of testing and (2) to train laboratory personnel.

Under the plan of collaboration, the laboratories will supervise routine testing at Grady and the training of residents and interns. The staff also will teach Emory medical students.

Laboratory personnel from health departments thorughout the United States will come here for refresher courses under the auspices of the Communicable Disease Center.

Special DeKalb Election For Sheriff Set Feb 21

By DICK HODGES

A special election for DeKalb county sheriff to fill the unexpired term of the late W. L. Broome will be set for Wednesday, Feb. 21, Mrs. Katherine E. Mann, DeKalb Ordinary, revealed Monday.

Mrs. Mann said she would officially call the election on Fez. 1, giving candidates until 5 p. m. Feb. 5 to qualify.

Meanwhile, Acting Sheriff Clem Jolly has announced he will be a candidate to fill the two-year unexpired term of Broome, who died last week. The late sheriff's son, Robert K. Broome, of Decatur, has already announced that he would seek the post.

Jolly, who has served in the sheriff's office for 22 years, was sworn in Friday as acting sheriff until the special election.

In announcing he would seek the post, Jolly said he felt he was carrying out the wishes of the late sheriff. "He often said that he hoped in the event anything happened to him that I would be his successor," Jolly added.

A native of Bolton, Jolly came to DeKalb County when he was young. He attended public schools in Clarkston and went to the Atlanta Business College. He later served as justice of the peace, postmaster, member of the city council and member of the board of education in Clarkston.

Married and the father of four sons, the 75-year-old Jolly lives at 316 Mead St., Decatur.

Grady Hospital Wages Held Needing Revision

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Need for study and possible revision of the wage scale at Grady Hospital was voiced here Monday by Hughes Spalding, chairman of the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority, at the first 1951 meeting of the Authority.

He said he had "never been satisfied" with the pay scale and he thought it should be re-evaluated before any order freezing wages is issued by the government.

Frank Wilson, superintendent of Grady, pointed out that Grady "has to have a higher scale" than other hospitals for several reasons. He said the hospital's location was considered bad by clerical workers who "like to be in town near the shops." He said many technical workers disliked working in an emergency hospital because of the irregular hours.

The Authority requested the executive committee to study the hospital's wage scale and report at a later meeting.

Spalding was re-elected chairman of the Hospital Authority for 1951. Other officers re-elected were L. L. Gellerstedt, vice chairman; Frank Wilson, secretary-treasurer; and Fred Walker, assistant secretary-treasurer.

In a year-end report, Wilson said 228 patients were admitted to the polio ward at Grady in 1950. Of those, 201 were diagnosed as polio patients. Four deaths at the hospital were caused by polio.

Wilson reported that 214 patients were admitted to the psychiatric detention ward at Grady from Feb. 27 to Dec. 20. He said of that total, 95 were sent to the State Hospital at Milledgeville, 15 were sent to veterans' hospitals, 12 were sent to jails and all others were released.

"That means," he explained, "that 92 people were kept out of an insane asylum who would have been sent there otherwise."

He said he planned to recommend that the size of the detention ward be doubled. The ward now has only seven beds.

Wilson reported the Hospital Authority last year received $2,350,724 from Fulton County and $209,000 from DeKalb County. He said the budget was "balanced."

He reported a bequest by Miss Clara Louise Weber, former Atlantan who died in California, would total about $20,000—about $14,000 more than the original estimate. He explained Miss Weber made the bequest to Grady because her father had been treated there.

An anonymous gift of $1,000 to the Hospital Authority for the Grady Hospital building fund also was anounced by Wilson. He said the donor specified the funds be used for child patients at Grady if the proposed new hospital was not in the proces of construction after five years.

$1 Parking Ticket Turns Into $181 Bill

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 22—(AP)—It seemed like a harmless thing, that ticket Edward Brewer, of Hagerstown got for double parking. But instead of $1, Brewer soon found $181 charged against him.

While in the City Hall paying the parking fine, his car rolled into another parked vehicle, causing $80 in damages.

When police investigated, they found Brewer was operating the car on a revoked license. For that the judge fined him $100.

LONELY PATIENT

Gloria Asks Substitute Grandmother

A sunny-haired, 10-year-old patient at Grady Hospital is looking fore someone to pinch-hit as her "grandmother."

Gloria Moore

Gloria Moore, of 148 Memorial Dr., S. E., Apt. 284, whose illness has been diagnosed as "possible rheumatic fever," made her unusual request in a letter to The Constitution.

The carefully penciled letter, just as Gloria wrote it, follows:

"Mr. Etter:

"My name is Gloria Moore.

"I am 10 years old. I read your paper every day. I notice you do lots of things for people and I want you to do something for me. I have ben sick for a week and have to stay out of School and I get awful lonesome for company. My mother comes to see me but I want two grandmothers that will come to see me. Will you find me one so I can have two like other girls and boys, as I am going to have to be out of school a while because I swell and have to be on a diet.

"I am sending you a picture.

"Your friend, Gloria Moore."

Interviewed at Grady, Gloria proudly admitted she wrote the letter "all by myself and my mother didn't know anything about it."

Gloria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Moore, said the doctors had been giving her "shots and things" and she felt fine.

"I just wrote the letter while I was laying on the bed," she said, "because I wanted someone to be kind to me."

Vote Machines

DeKalb County Commissioner Scott Candler indicated Monday that voting machines may be installed in DeKalb precincts in the not too distant future.

Candler said the county now does not have the money, estimated at around $150,000, to purchase the machines. He added, however, "if we can get the money we'll finance them, and I think we can."

His statement came after the DeKalb County Democratic Executiev Committee Monday afternoon passed a resolution asking Candler to proceed to buy the machines.

Walter D. Parris, secretary-treasurer of the committee, said the question of buying or otherwise acquiring the machine was left up to the county commissioner.

Parris said the move was made on the recommendation of several grand juries that voting machines are necessary in DeKalb. It is estimated that between 100 and 130 machines will be needed in the county, he explained.

The executive committee re-elected Coy Elliott as chairman, elected George Perrin to fill the vice chairman's post and re-elected Parris as secretary-treasurer of the 18-man group.

Woman Reports Nightrider Visit

WHITEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 22—(AP)—Sheriff Hugh Nance said that a Negro woman reported Monday night that a mob of white nightriders entered her home and beat her last Thursday.

Nance quoted Mrs. Evergreen Flowers, of near Chadbourn, Columbus County, as saying 40 or 50 men beat her with sticks and a gun and then took her outside, evidently to put her in an automobile, but drove away when one member of the group said "Let's leave her alone."

She said the men gave no reason for the beating, and she knew of none.

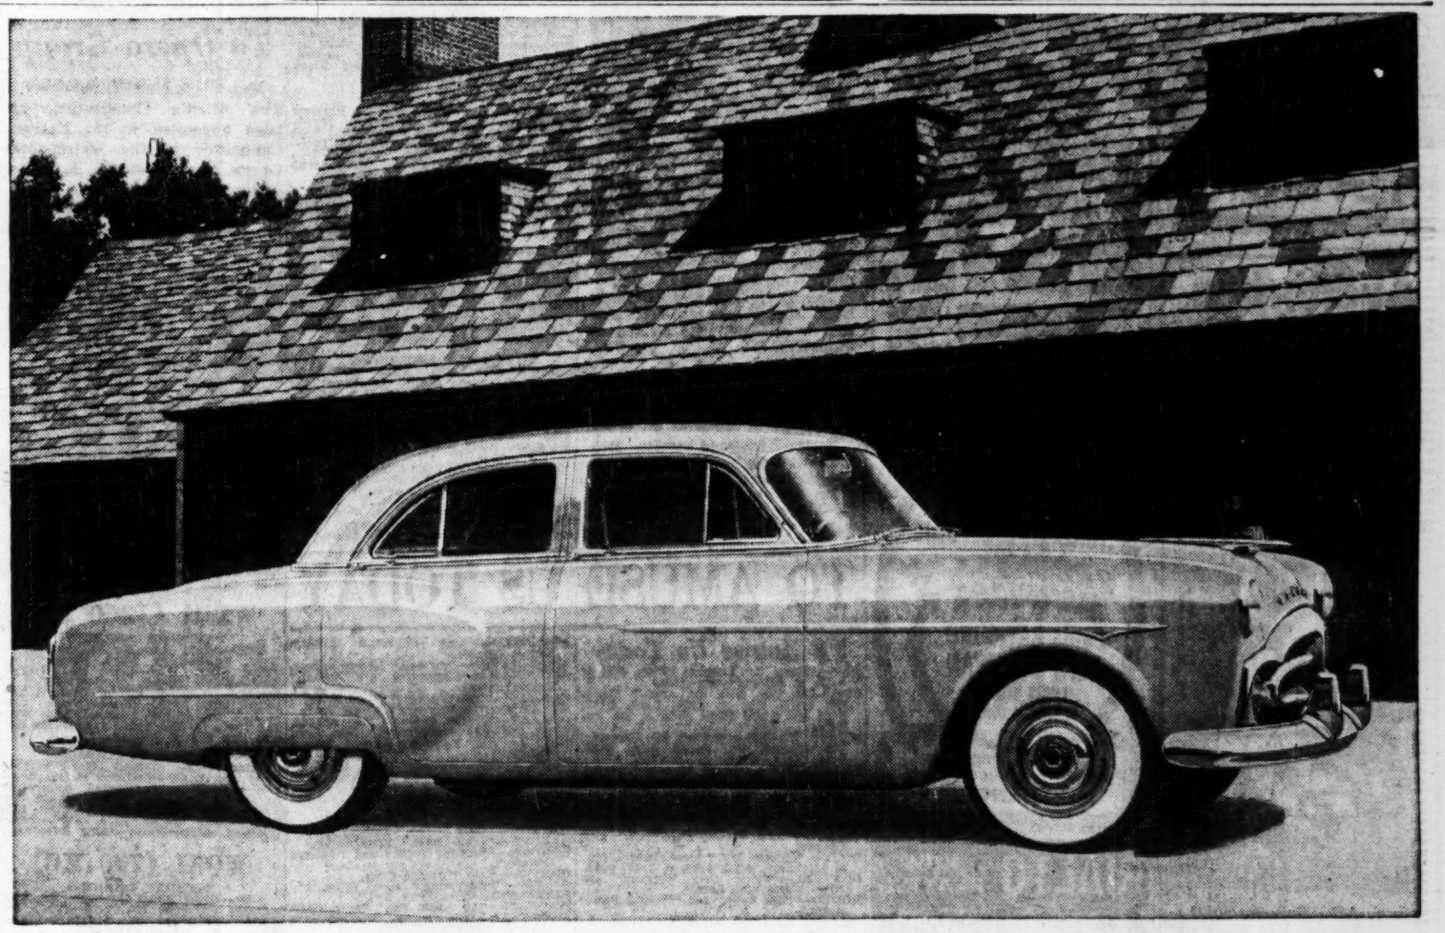
AMERICAN AIRLINES and Delta AIR LINES



This changes your entire outlook!

You'll know what we mean, the instant you slip behind the wheel . . .

For here, to begin with, is a whole new concept of safer driving visibility. No more "bonnet blindness"—wondering what's ahead, and at your right. In this sleek new 1951 Packard, you enjoy close-up visibility over a new kind of low-level hood—with distinctive Guide-line fenders to mark the sides of your car for safer parking and passing.

Plus: A new, one-piece windshield, nearly five feet wide . . . a "windshield-wide" rear window to match . . . new horizon-view visibility all around! And then Packard goes on to change your outlook in every other phase of motoring! Come in—see and drive the newest new car of them all!

New outlook in SAFETY: Packard gives you real close-up visibility over a new low-level hood; lets you see both front fenders from behind the wheel. Compare Packard safety vision with the view from a conventional car.

New outlook in PERFORMANCE: New Packard Thunderbolt engines (America's top-compression eights) team with Packard's exclusive Ultramatic Drive to give you the world's finest highway-and-traffic performance.

New outlook in LASTING VALUE: The 1951 Packard—in every point of comparison—is the newest new car of them all. And it's precision-built to stay new throughout the uncertain years ahead.

It's more than a car--it's a PACKARD ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

Will TV Audience 'Buy' the Classics?

By PAUL JONES

Is there an audience for Shakespeare, Shaw and Ibsen amid the millions of television homes in the nation?

That $64 puzzler was tossed into the teevee quiz box Sunday night on This Is Show Business by John Gielgud, noted Shakespearean actor.

The panel experts which attempted to provide an answer quite frankly were puzzled. Faye Emerson said definitely "yes." . . . Abe Burrows quipped: "If they can disquise the classics with a sugary title, I believe they will succeed." . . . And George S. Kauffman, who considers the serious aspects of all puzzlers said: "If we had someone like Mr. Gielgud to perform them, they would be a hit."

We believe the panel has underestimated the teevee audience—the masses. Haven't we already had a demonstration that televiewers want the finer things—the subtle comedy of Kukla, Fran and Ollie, the very classic pantomime medium of Sid Caesar, the high-brow plays authored by the Pulitzer Prize writers?

Hasn't the public voiced its sentiments against the pie throwers? . . . Isn't Show of Shows a real high-brow revue and don't Marguerite Piazza and the ballet get rousing hands from the studio as well as the unseen audiences?

Musical recordings have developed a mass audience for fine music. . . . Millions who never dared attend a symphony concert developed a taste for serious music in a record shop booth.

Why, then, can't television develop a similar mass audience for fine drama, which would be both educational and entertaining?

It is certainly worth a try.

KAY FRANCIS, pretty screen star who played two engagements in the Penthouse Theater, gives two hopefuls an assist toward stardom on WSB-TV's delightful Hollywood Screen Test at 6 when she appears in "The Long Way Around." . . . Hopefuls are William Kemo and David Anderson.

Two other shows of a dramatic nature—Circle Theater at 9:30 and the Billy Rose Show at 9 will feature exceptional plays on WSB-TV. . . . Frank Albertson and Wally Cox will appear in "The Galoshes of Fortune" on the Rose show and Geraldine Brooks and John Archer will co-star in "Silver Service," a romance on Circles' show.

WAGA-TV spotlights drama at 9:30 and 10 p. m., also with Suspense presenting "The Fool's Heart" at 9:30 and Dean Harens and Jerome Thor taking turns before the camera in "Appointment With Death" on Danger.

The Berle Show, with Berle back from the hazardous vacation to Florida, gets started at 8 on WSB-TV.

MONTGOMERY CLIFF turns his talents to radio at 8 .o star in "The Metal of the Moon" on Cavalcade of America on WSB.

Jack Kirkwood visits Bob Hope at 9 on WSB and Truth or Consequences (WAGA-CBS at 9:30) feature a surprise party for a letter carrier of Los Angeles.

Buildup by June Enough To Protect U. S.-Bradley

Objectives Listed To Avoid Disaster

By HAROLD B. HINTON
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee Monday that the armed forces of 3,462,000 to be developed before June 30 can protect the continental United States against invasion.

He gave the subcommittee the following description what he termed "Our specific military objectives:"

"To create the power to prevent disaster in the event we are attacked; to have in hand the immediate capability of quick and strong retaliation to the attacker; and, finally, to have a base upon which to build an overwhelming force, with which we can take up the offensive and overpower the aggressor."

He explained that planned defenses against air attacks, combined with those projected by the Canadians, would be sufficient to prevent "complete disaster," but not of sufficient size or strength to "preclude any possibility of the United States being bombed."

"If a determined enemy is willing to extend the effort," he said, "some bombers will get through."

Gen. Bradley was testifying in favor of the Administration bill to lower the draft age to 18, and to require 27 months from inductees instead of 21 months, as at present. At another point, he declared that "our strategy does not include a retraction of all our military power to the continental limits of the North American continent when we are attacked."

The immediate retaliatory effort against the aggressor, he explained, would take the form of strategic air bombardment. The Army and the Navy would be called upon, he added, to seize and hold bases from which the air strikes could be made, and the closer "the bases are to the enemy the easier it will be, and the less costly it will be, to provide a sustained retaliation air attack."

The witness engaged in a prolonged colloquy with Sen. Morse, Republican of Oregon, over the moral and psychological dangers to which men 18 years might be subjected by being forced into the military service. Gen. Bradley took the view that a man's character is well formed, through home, school and church influences, by the time he reaches that age.

Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, Assistant secretary of Defense, told the subcommittee that the armed forces intend to induct, during the fiscal year starting next July 1, about 400,000 men in the 18-year age bracket, provided the legislation is passed.

Erle Cocke, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, endorsed the draft at 18 and the 27 months of service. He proposed as an amendment to the pending bill a provision directing the President to continue in effect a system of universal basic training of at least four months, even if conditions should improve to such an extent that he discontinued the actual service, as the bill would authorize him to do.

In such an event, however, Cocke urged that civilian authorities be put in charge of the basic training, at least to the extent of determining policies for it and handling funds for it.

Omar B. Kitchum, legislative director of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, President of the National Guard Association, and Brig. Gen. E. A. Evans, executive director of the Reserve Officers Association, supported the amendment Cocke advanced.

Murphy Warns Against Wild and Wily Women

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP)—Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy warned 480 new policemen Monday to beware of temptations, including "intoxicating liquors and wild and beautiful women with ulterior motives."

Speaking at Police Academy graduation exercises for the rookies, Murphy said:

"You will be under close supervision and discipline. You will be confronted with great temptations—intoxicating liquors and wild and beautiful women with ulterior motives. Eternal vigilance and determination is necessary to preserve your personal honor and integrity."

Trade Pacts Held Symbol Of U. S. Way

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—Extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act for three years beyond the present June 12 expiration date was urged Monday by Secretary of State Dean Acheson as "a symbol of United States' determination to lead in the co-operative effort to expand world trade."

As the first and principal spokesman for the administration proposal, Acheson told the House Ways and Means Committee that failure to renew the authority would have "most disastrous effects," and would "make a vast difference" to the co-operative effort to build up the economic and military strength of the non-Communist world.

"It would be an indication," said Acheson, "that instead of moving forward toward increased production and trade in co-operation with the free world, we have decided to withdraw from that co-operative effort."

the program he sponsored there was no indication of it from the questions put to him by committeemen.

These indicated on the part of Republican members a disposition to blame the reciprocal trade agreements program for any and all reverses suffered by segments of domestic manufacturing industries and, on the part of Democrats a desire to establish a connection between the trade program and improved living standards in the past 15 years.

As stated by Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins, Republican of Ohio, "this whole business started under Secretary of State Hull and he used to tell us that the reciprocal trade program would provide the basis for lasting peace in the world but it seems to me that we have had nothing but war, hot or cold, ever since."

Rep. Hale Boggs, Democrat of New Orleans, put it differently. He said he could remember how the business of the Port of New Orleans had come virtually to a standstill before enactment of the reciprocal trade program in 1934. He argued the connection between a lowering of tariff barriers under the program and the booming business of the port since that time.

Acheson, target of Republican demands that he resign, indicated at the hearing he doesn't expect to have his job in 1954. Rep. Richard M. Simpson, Republican, Pennsylvania, asked Acheson what he thought would be needed at the end of the three-year extension of the reciprocal trade program.

The Secretary got a laugh with his reply: "I do not believe that will be my province, three years from now."

Alarm Awakens Deaf

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(U.P.)—When the alarm clock goes off, Cleburn Harris and his wife, both deaf, climb out of bed. The alarm trips a wooden knocker which jars the room and, as it falls, switches on an unshaded electric light.

No Service on Sunday

SALT LAKE CITY—(U.P.)—When a burglar alarm rang on Sunday at the Utah state liquor control commission's store, officers swarmed to the location. They found two men, recent immigrants from Europe, standing patiently at the counter with order blanks filled out, wanting to be waited on. Attendants had turned on the alarm system when they left Saturday night but failed to lock the front door.

WEARY MEN REST AT SALVATION ARMY EMERGENCY SHELTER
Transients Tax Capacity of Center Here

SEEKING WAR JOBS?

Salvation Army Room Taxed by Transients

By MARJORY SMITH

A pathetic wartime "Army" is on the march again.

Its uniform is dust-stained trousers and cracked shoes with run-over heels and maybe a piece of cardboard slipped between thin soles and chill pavements.

The Army moves slowly, and it bivouacs in Atlanta chiefly at the Salvation Army's Emergency Shelter at 339 Luckie St., N. W.

"Our transient load is going up steadily . . . so steadily we don't know what we're going to do for accommodations if it keeps up," Maj. Hugo Bloomburg, Shelter Director, said.

On recent cold nights the Shelter had men sleeping on the floor "19 deep," with an overflow into the Chapel.

The Fire Department heard about it and objected on grounds of safety. "But," ask Salvation Army workers, "what are you going to do with broken, tired men on a cold night when all your beds are full?"

Major Bloomburg thinks the surge of hitchhikers—over and above the usual seasonal load of migrants seeking warmer weather and citrus fruit-picking jobs in Florida—is due to recent announcements of opening of the Lockheed Plant at Marietta and the H-bomb materials producing plant near Augusta.

But Travelers Aid observers who "have been on the job a long time" can't help "thinking back" to 1941. They see not just men but entire families moving, many with definite hopes of war industry employment, some apparently aimlessly.

"We experienced almost exactly the same thing in 1941," Director Mrs. Mary Athearn said. "There was a lull in the early part of the Korean war, as if families all over the country were stopped dead in their tracks and didn't know which way to turn. Then, suddenly in December, when ordinarily our seasonal transient load begins to slack off—it began increasing! Families began to pull up stakes and move, some in a panic, some with a purpose."

Men seeking soup, coffee, and beds under the Salvation Army signs reading "Transients—One Free Night Only!" and "Take a Bath; Be Clean; Keep Clean!" come from all over the country. Most are too old and too unskilled for wartime civilian jobs they have a vague hope of getting.

They include bona fide Army veterans like a 27-year-old Dalton man who said he "was looking for any kind of work." There is Ogle Trent, grizzled ex-coal miner and factory worker from Illinois.

"I'm too old to get a job in a factory," Trent will tell you matter-of-factly. "I've got no family. I started hitchhiking Christmas Eve day; I want to get to Waycross or Florida maybe."

And then there is Fred C. Saboll of Lowell, Mass., who hobbles cheerfully on crutches to a "regular" room he has been paying for steadily for five years in the Salvation Army's adjoining Argonne Hotel for workingmen.

Saboll has a courtly air and memories of the time he "supported Gov. James Cox in his presidential campaign." He is one of a goodly number of Salvation Army-aided men who found jobs here and settled down.

"A labor union called me only yesterday and asked for 35 men," Major Bloomburg reported. "When the Marietta and Augusta plants and other defense industry units really begin booming, this situation may quiet down. But right now, transients are running us ragged and we're in debt for the soup and coffee they need to get them on to the next town."

Papal Envoy Denounces Materialism

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 22—(AP)—Materialistic theories have enslaved man in the last 100 years, Pope Pius XII's delegate to the United States said here Monday night.

"The earth has been infected and lacerated by materialistic theories," the Most Rev. Amleto G. Cicognani declared in informal remarks to the Catholic Committee of the South's mid-century convention here.

"Man has ended "by surrendering his personality and rights, and is bewildered to the point of complete confusion about the true purpose of life," he said. "Man's spirit has become weak and sickly. Christ, and only Christ, is the answer."

Improved social conditions in the Southeastern States is the main goal of the Committee, delegates heard from other speakers.

The South must catch up with the rest of the nation in three areas of activity in which it lags —industry, liberty and democracy —President Paul D. Williams of the Southern Regional Council, Richmond, Va., said.

International good will is hampered by the South's "unapplied democracy," Bishop William T. Mulloy, of Covington, Ky., said in his sermon at a solmn pontifical mass opening the convention Monday.

The nation, he said, "has assumed the task of making the promise of our democracy meaningful to the rest of the world," yet the South's treatment of the Negro is "an obstacle to other nations who are sincere inquirers into our American way of life."

All the air passages are lined with delicate tiny hairs, called cilia. They work like tiny brooms and sweep out germs and bacteria so they are easily expelled. When you catch a cold, the thick secretions of mucus and phlegm collect in your air passages, clogging and plugging up the breathing. Bacteria or germs collect in these secretions and may cause serious consequences because the cilia are so stuck in the secretions they cannot perform their wonderful cleansing action. Failure to liquify the thick mucus and phlegm may cause complications and infections. Peruna acts fast, gently and safely to liquify these thick secretions so you can clear your throat, rid your breathing passages of these thick secretions and breathe easily again. Thus, the cilia can help protect your health again by keeping germs and bacteria out of your air passages, which may cause complications and infections. Buy the New Peruna at your drug store today, under the maker's guarantee you must be satisfied or your money back.

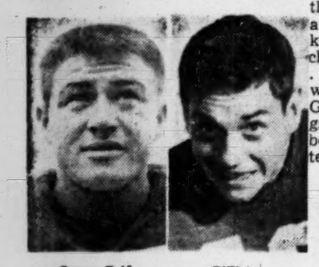
Lewis Helped Give Tech Last Win Over Kentucky

For what it's worth: Breezy Reid is trying to talk brother Bernie out of the coaching field and into a pro career with him as a Green Bay Packer in the Fall. Bernie left a Georgia guard and became an Albany assistant last season. . . . Phenomenon of the Albany weekend to Johnny Lujack was Carlton Lewis and his incredible record at West Point High School without any college football background. "Sounds like a West Point we used to play at Notre Dame," he said.

Tall Carlton played on the last Georgia Tech basketball team that beat Kentucky in 1942. A teammate was Giant Jim Hearn. . . . Florida Assistant Tonto Coleman's favorite method of emphasizing the size of Texas has to do with a little plains town where they keep a Jeep on the sidelines to chase the football after extra points. . . . For Bob Woodruff, Albany was a return engagement. The Gator from Decatur played his first game of football there on Cuthbert High School's first organized team.



Breezy Reid — DiPietro

Revelations that creep out in the night: Weems Baskin's career as a sports writer which ran concurrently with his Olympic track days. The South Carolina assistant once did a story on Spec Towns for Collier's. . . . Don Veller's hero-worship as a kid in Bicknell, Ind. His hero? Hertis McCrary, the great Georgia halfback of the late '20s.

Georgia will open Winter practice next week without Francis DiPietro, its most promising fullback prospect. The Ashtabula, Ohio, freshman pulled out of school last week with the idea of going into the service. With him went Guard Don Virosko. . . . If the Southeastern League fails to get back into business, Earl Mann must cast about for a new Class B farm replacement for Pensacola.

Only Pop Warner Stayed Put

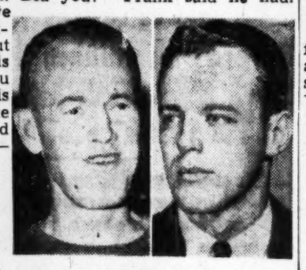
Whatever comes of the coaching industry in years hence, there will be few such ordeals as were encountered over the late weekend. Only coach from coast to coast who wasn't involved in the verbal migration was Pop Warner, who has been down with the gout and doesn't get around so well. . . . What Earl Brown needs now is a good manager to direct his campaign for Governor of Alabama. . . . I'm not too clear on all the developments, but I understand that the plan for collegiate retaliation will see Army's athletic staff jointly recommending that Harry Truman be replaced as coach of the United States. . . . Auburn's successful counterattack appears to have proved again that in the sports industry, politicos are still authorities only on poll vaulting.

Roy McArthur's defeat by Georgia Saturday night still leaves him a comfortable margin of success in the series. He has won eight of 13 with the Bulldogs since moving in as Tech court coach. . . . About a month ago it was suggested here that Vassa Cate would soon join the Georgia coaching staff. It's looking better than ever today, for Cate, Wally Butts' first captain at Athens in '39, has the scarce sort of quality found in retiring Quinton Lumpkin.

Charlie Waller and Johnny Lujack were Navy cronies in England during the last war. . . . Now they're saying that Branch Rickey is playing on Happy Chandler's team again. Always did go for the underdog. . . . Now they're also saying that Auburn, which leads the SEC in grants-in-aid this year, will bring in 16 junior college prospects in time for Spring practice. . . . Old Cracker Lum Harris has signed on as batting practice pitcher for the White Sox. He and Paul Richards once formed a Cracker battery.

Owen Had Bossons in Mind

Story corner: Frank Howard ran into Red Sanders at the NCAA meeting in Dallas and asked him if he'd done anything new with the single wing. "No," said Red. Did you?" Frank said he had. "What?" Red asked. "This year we blocked," Frank said. . . . "Grant-in-aid has its faults, I know, but the pressure isn't as bad as it is in the Southern Conference. You read in June that a prep star is going to Duke, in July to Wake Forest, in August to N. C. State and he winds up at North Carolina."—Bobby Dodd.



McArthur — Wilkinson

Until he found that Bob Bossons wasn't interested, Steve Owen planned to draft the Tech hero to play defensive halfback for his New York Giants. . . . Tucker Musser, the resigned Tennessee publicist, hopes to relocate in Atlanta. His wife is Bobby Dodd's niece. . . . Boxing research artists have arrived at figures that show baseball the most deadly sport in New York. Over a period of 22 years, 44 have died on the diamond, 25 in the ring and 24 on the football field, they say.

North Carolina is advertising a rising sophomore named Billy Williams as the 1951 version of Charlie Justice. . . . The Gator Bowl expects to do business on the same old plan, the NCAA's 75 per cent ruling notwithstanding, if it stays in business. The affair has never been a roaring success. . . . Freddie (Nashville Banner) Russell says Bud Wilkinson will quit coaching within three years and go into the oil business.

There had been a chance that Frank Thomas, Jr., and Bob Neyland, Jr., would meet in SEC football, but no more. Young Thomas has transferred to Tech and becomes ineligible. Young Neyland gave up football last year after illness. He may still come back, however. . . . San Francisco 49er Homer Hobbs, the Georgia guard of '46, will go back to California in February to become a year-round resident. . . Bill Munday returns to the air this week with a 15-minute show over an Atlanta station. . . . Football has been dropped again at Duquesne, but with a record of nine wins in five years, who can say it was ever resumed. Selah.

Pirates Sign Mound Ace

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club Monday signed a young pitcher with an impressive strikeout record for its farm club at Salisbury, N. C., in the Class D North Carolina League.

Bill Spivey Sinks 30 as Kentucky Routs Georgia Tech Five, 82-61

By EDWIN POPE

Seven-foot Bill Spivey, who can hear the angels sing just standing flatfooted, came home Monday night and redeemed himself in his native land. "Grits" ripped a friendly Georgia Tech basket for 30 points and hauled Kentucky on out to an 82-61 walkaway.

What a different Spivey from the ungainly, overanxious specimen who showed to such disadvantage here a year ago!

This time, he was All-American—smooth, deadly, and a great competitor.

The Warner Robins skyscraper scored 20 points in a first half that wasn't quite all Wildcat. He pounded through the remaining 10 in the 10 minutes he played after intermission.

Bill Spivey

Tech, losing its 11th game in 13 starts, rolled up the highest score Kentucky (12-1) had allowed all year. Pete Silas and Bill Cline deposited 18 and 17 points apiece in the Jacket scoring bank. But the Wildcats' runaway count also represented their second highest of the year. Walt Hirsch got 19 for Kentucky.

It was all offense, and it appeared once—at the six-minute juncture—that Roy McArthur's men might make a contest. The score was 13-9 then and Tech had shed its early shakes, was in a spurt.

Adolph Rupp's Bluegrass contingent calmly called for time, collected itself, set up perfectly synchronized under-the-basket plays and wheeled away to a 49-32 halftime margin.

Kentucky speared the little steel circle on an astonishing 48.8 per cent of its first-half shots and wound up with a snazzy 39.6 per cent for the evening. The 'Cats could have been sharper, but only with razor blades.

Tech hit on 25.6 in the first half, 21.1 after halftime.

Stubby Bobby Watson, an Owensboro junior, got his agents off to a flying start with connections on his first two shots. Wiry Walt Hirsch did, too, and Spivey spun in a pivot blast before the 'Cats cooled at 10-1—with a five-for-five tally.

Watson curbed his shots the remainder of the game but he was the Blue's big playmaker. Former Marist College Coach Neal Alford was in the stands watching the little guy he started in basketball in an Owensboro, Ky., junior league, and he marvelled with the rest.

Early violations by Frank Ramsey, Kentucky's sophomore guard, cheated the scant capacity gathering of more sight of him. But the big blond excelled around the backboard and dumped in a couple of baskets before leaving.

Coach McArthur snared some cheer from the over-all blackness of the situation in the showings of Cline and Silas. Cline fought Spivey every inch—and Spivey has plenty of 'em—and looked good doing it. Rupp found post-game praise for the reed-thin Silas, who lopped in three field goals and as many free throws in each half.

So, now, the Gold moves out to play Mississippi State Friday night and Ole Miss Friday, still hunting its second SEC credit. And Kentucky is primed for its Saturday night invasion of Vanderbilt (6-0).

If the Commodores can outscat the 'Cats, the conference could crown a new champion for the first time in eight years.

Tech can testify Vandy will have the game of its life, trying.

Bulldogs Take On Mercer Five

By GENE ASHER

ATHENS, Jan. 22—Georgia's basketball team moves into the backstretch of its 23-game schedule against Mercer at Macon Tuesday night.

And according to Coach Jim Whatley, the salient feature of the first 12 games has been the increasing improvement of junior Guard Jim Umbricht and sophomore Forward Bill Shain.

"Umbricht is one of the best floor men in the conference," Whatley said Monday at the Bulldogs completed final drills for Mercer

"He's alert under the backboards and is playing heads-up defensive ball."

North Georgia prep at Decatur High, has made progress as a point-getter. He averaged only five points the first nine games, but against Tulane, South Carolina and Georgia Tech, he maintained a nine point average.

When Jim entered Georgia he was 6' 2" and weighed 165 pounds. Now he's 6' 4" and weighs 205, and he will probably become Georgia's regular center next season since Bob (Slim) Schloss will be gone.

Shain, the young sensation from Kentucky, who by-passed his state university to study forestry at Georgia, is one of the top prospects ever to play for the Bulldogs.

He's a capable ball-handler, excellent teamman, and has recently become one of Whatley's leading scorers.

Blond Bill, who came here without a scholarship, scored seven points per game in his first seven games, but he has averaged 13.4 in the last five. He tallied 15 against Florida, 13 against Auburn, 10 against Tulane, 18 against South Carolina, and his 15 markers last Saturday enabled the Bulldogs to trounce Georgia Tech.

"Shain has shown remarkable improvement," Whatley says, "against Tech, he made three of the finest drive-in-shots I have ever seen."

Schloss has 161 points for a 13.4 average; Davis 158 for 13.1 and Jordan 144 for 12. Shain has 116 for a 9.6 average and Umbricht 77 for 6.4.

The Bulldogs are averaging 61.5 points per game. The university record is 61.8, established by the 1948 team.

Georgia will be seeking its fourth consecutive victory Tuesday night. Whatley has named Minton Williams, senior guard, of Macon, the captain against Mercer. Williams will be performing before a hometown crowd. He formerly played for Macon's Lanier High. The Bulldogs beat the Bears, 64-51, here in their season opener.

Georgia's Dick Steele Faces Knife

Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, Jan. 22—Dick Steele, Georgia's first-string defensive tackle for the past two seasons, will undergo a knee operation at Atlanta's Crawford Long Hospital Saturday. He will have a cartilage removed.

A 6-foot-four, 240-pound junior from Atlanta, Steele will miss Spring drills and will be unable to participate in contact work until next Fall.

He injured his knee last Nov. 8, three days before the Florida game. The week before he had given his top performance against Alabama.

"Dick's injury hurt us for the remainder of the season," says line coach Ralph Jordan. "He came to his own in the Alabama game and was valuable both offensively and defensively."

Steele hobbled on the field during the Tech game here and personally halted a Jacket drive with two consecutive tackles at the scrimmage line.

He plans to strengthen his knee for the 1951 season by running up and down the Sanford Stadium steps during April and May.

MIDDLECOFF'S 271 WINS

Heafner Blasts Fans, Quits Lakewood Open

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 22—(AP)—Professional Golfer Clayton Heafner's game, patience and temper exploded almost simultaneously Monday. As a result, he strode angrily out of the $10,000 Lakewood Open Tournament.

Heafner, from Charlotte, N. C., who started out Monday's final round two strokes off the pace and had an excellent chance to win a good piece of the purse, accused the gallery of interfering with his shots.

Heafner was playing with former National Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum and Julius Boros, of Mid Pines, N. C., who went into the round tied at the top with Cary Middlecoff at 203.

Heafner, with previous rounds of 67-67-71, was six strokes over par for the first six holes Monday afternoon, and that's when he quit. Said he in the locker room later:

Middlecoff

"I got tired of shooting over people's heads. I don't need the money that bad. I'm not hungry.

"If they want to act like heathens, it's all right with me. But I don't have to play under such conditions."

He claimed the crowd and marshals "were busy watching Mangrum and Boros," and as a result, he repeatedly was forced to wait long intervals until the way could be cleared for him to shoot.

Mangrum and Boros let Haefner's cracks stand but said that so far as they were concerned, their games were not hampered by the gallery.

Middlecoff went on to win with 271, 13 under par. Boros took a 73 for a 72 hole total of 276. Mangrum's 75 gave him 278. Manuel de la Torre, of Milwaukee, finished second to Middlecoff with a 274.

The DA to Doak: 'What Do You Do?'

DALLAS, Jan. 22—(AP)—Fame is fickle and fleeting, Doak Walker, professional football's rookie of the year, found Monday.

The Detroit Lions halfback, a three-time All-America from Southern Methodist, sat on the Criminal District Court jury panel waiting to be questioned.

Asst. Dist. Atty. James K. Allen turned to him and said, "Mr. Walker, what business are you in?"

Southern Tech Wins, 62-60

Southern Tech came from behind in the last five minutes and edged Young Harris, 62-60, Monday night on the Southern Tech court.

It was the 12th triumph in 15 games for Southern Tech, and the sixth setback in 12 games for Young Harris.

Doherty Play Begins Today

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22—(AP)—A near-record field of 160 women amateurs will tee off Tuesday morning in the 18-hole qualifying round of the Helen Lee Doherty Golf Tournament at the Miami Country Club.

Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Texas, the defending champion, said Monday night she would waive her exemption from the qualifying round and would compete Tuesday in the hope that she could sharpen up her game for the match play starting Wednesday.

Miss Riley, who wound up 18th with a 318 in the Tampa Women's Open, which ended Sunday, said her putting was off.

Jockey Suspended

Maroons' Hargett Chosen SEC 'Star of the Week'

The Constitution's first Southeastern Conference Basketball Star of the Week is Herbert Hargett of Mississippi State.

He's a little guy—stands just 5-10—but he shot 54 points in two games last week. He's averaging 20.3 points per game with only mediocre support.

Hargett

Hargett banged through 29 points as State overwhelmed her bitter rival, University of Mississippi, got 25 more against big Vanderbilt. Last year, the curly-haired senior came up on the second All-SEC team. This trip he has rough competition from Georgia's Joe Jordan, Kentucky's Frank Ramsey and Bobby Watson and Auburn's Don Lanford. But he's a bet.

Coach Paul Gregory's No. 1 Maroon became No. 1 in the league, at least for the week, when he was selected from the list of outstanding players submitted by SEC coaches and publicity directors.

City Lead At Stake Tonight

Sylvan Quintet Meets Brown

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

A house divided stands very well, at least in the City League basketball rankings. Brown High, "split up" this year with about half of its students going to new Sylvan High, lolls atop the pack with a 6-0 record. In second place with a 5-1 record is—you guessed it—Sylvan.

Players from Brown and Sylvan, classmates a year ago but now the feudingest of enemies, will meet for the first time in league basketball play at the Brown gym Tuesday night. The Johnny Rebs, defending their title, will be after their 21st consecutive league triumph. The Golden Bears will be seeking to win in order to tie the homelings for the lead. Big Dan Fausett, six-seven center, and Bobby Moore, driving speedster, will carry the load for Roy Rowlett's Reds. Ronald Miller, one of the city's slickest floor men, and Troy Davis, a hardwood dead-eye-dick, will lead another demonstration of Coach Ozzie Wadewitz's hell-for-leather style of play. It should be one of the year's big battles.

Smith and Roosevelt, stalemated for third place, will be pounding the boards for supremacy on Roosevelt planking. Other league twin bills, starting with B team curtain raisers at 7:30 o'clock, find O'Keefe at Grady and Murphy at Bass.

The best non-league duel probably will be at East Point where Russell's boys and girls play host to potent Decatur teams. Other double headers include College Park at Campbell, Forest Park at Fulton, Hapeville at Southwest and Chamblee at Southwest DeKalb. The Druid Hills girls will invade the Washington Seminary court.

Southeastern Loop Tosses in Towel

Alabama State Also Folds; Minors Face Bleak Future

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP)—Folding of the Southeastern and Alabama State leagues is the first break in the solid front of baseball's minor leagues since the 1950 season.

Manpower, financial and transportation problems threaten the entire minor league structure. How many of the 55 remaining leagues can survive is problematical.

Several leagues met Sunday to debate their fate, hoping to shift a franchise or two and continue. The Class D Alabama State was the first to go. Then came decision by the Class B. Southeastern.

"At least 10 will go," said a minor league official who did not want his name used. "I'm afraid it will be more. There just won't be enough ball players to go around."

Most of the problems are concerned in leagues below Class B. These circuits with their low salaries and inexperienced players are particularly vulnerable.

The Alabama State had only three clubs when it threw in the towel. The Southeastern had five but gave up when Dothan, Ala., declined to join.

Several players on the roster of the Pensacola Fliers, of the defunct Southeastern League, will be transferred to the Atlanta Crackers, Pres. Earl Mann said Monday.

The Crackers had a working agreement with Pensacola and will get first shot at Flier talent. Mann plans a conference with Pensacola Owner Wally Dashiell this week.

The Cracker chief intimated that Spec Dozier, Pensacola pilot and former Atlanta catcher, will be placed in the Atlanta organization.

The Canadian-American league, Class C, has given Kingston, N. Y., until Saturday to take up a vacant sixth franchise. The Middle Atlantic league is hopeful of running with six clubs with a definite decision to be made within two weeks.

The Central League, a Class A unit, seeks a replacement for Flint, Mich., which the Detroit Tigers will not operate in 1951.

Three cities from the Rio Grande Valley League moved over to the Gulf Coast League as it went to eight teams for the first time. A Gulf Coast League City, Crowley, La., moved into Abbeville's spot in the Evangeline League.

Paul Brown Will Visit Ohio State

Condensed From Constitution Wire Reports

Paul Brown, coach of the professional football champion Cleveland Browns, said Monday night he will go to Ohio State University this week to talk about the school's head football coaching vacancy.

Brown, who once coached at Ohio State refused to say whether he wanted his old job back, but admitted the school had contacted him and arranged a conference.

Reports from meetings in Charlottesville, Va., of the Virginia's "Big Six" football school were that at least eight of the Southern Conference schools are in favor of making freshmen eligible for varsity competition this year.

National Football League club owners still were deadlocked Monday after another fruitless attempt to settle divisional alignment of clubs for the 1951 season. George Halas' move to change his Chicago Bears from the National division to the American division is holding up the works.

Henry A. Parr, III, resigned Monday as president of the Maryland Jockey Club and was succeeded by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord.

Club owners of the Kitty Baseball League voted Monday to accept Paducah, Ky., to replace Cairo, Ill., which surrendered its franchise.

Bobby Hipp, Asheville, N. C., was installed Monday as president of the Tri-State League, replacing C. Manley Llewellyn of Concord, N. C.

The idea of a national board to settle racing disputes came up as the National Association of State Racing Commissioners met in Miami Beach, but the Pres. A. A. Drew of Minden, La., said the group registered mixed feeling toward the proposition.

LaSalle Sets Off Court Feud

'Never So Abused,' Says Referee Young

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 22—(AP)—Officiating in North Carolina State College's 76-74 basketball victory over LaSalle College of Philadelphia Saturday night has touched off one of the liveliest intersectional debates of the season.

LaSalle Coach Ken Loeffler charged, on arrival home last night, that the victory of the team ranked No. 9 in last week's Associated Press poll was "one of the biggest steals since the Louisiana Purchase."

State Coach Everett Case, whose team wiped out a 42-31 halftime deficit and came charging back in the final minute to win its 17th game in 19 starts, said that, although he didn't think the game was "a steal," the work of referees Dolan Hedrick and Ab Young "left a lot to be desired."

Referee Young, a civilian attached to the Fort Bragg physical training school ,had this to say:

"If Loeffler's actions on the floor are charactreistic he ought to go back to the pros, he doesn't belong in college ball. After the game I took considerable verbal abuse from him. It was a question of taking it or fighting Loeffler and the entire LaSalle team. I would like to meet Loeffler at a future date when he doesn't have 15 basketball players behind him. I have been thinking about quitting as an official at the end of this year. After this game I am tempted to quit right now. In 20 years of coaching and officiating I have never taken such abuse.

"And that crowd (a 12,000 sellout) was the worst beefing, crying crowd I ever saw. Basketball is nothing more than mass hysteria under such conditions.

Tom Case Joins Staff at East Lake

Charlotte Pro To Aid Sargent; Atlanta PGA Play Set Friday

By BERT PRATHER

Harold Sargent, head professional at East Lake Country Club, announced Monday he had signed Tom Case of Charlotte, N. C., as an assistant, effective February 15.

Case, now on his way west to join the pro tour for a couple of tournaments, has been an assistant to Henry Lindner at Charlotte Country Club for the past two years.

Sargent says Case, 28 years old and married, should be among the top flight players in this section. Though sticking close to his teaching duties at Charlotte, Case was always capable of shooting better than average golf.

One of his better rounds over the par 72 Charlotte layout was a course record-equalling 63.

The Atlanta PGA will stage its January pro-amateur tournament Friday afternoon at Bill Hall's Adams Park course. Each visiting professional will bring along one amateur partner. Adams Park will furnish the remaining player for each threesome.

Col. Bob Jones, father of Grand Slam King Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., is in Emory University Hospital for a checkup. He is expected to be there for a few days.

Bill Wotherspoon, former treasurer of the National PGA, stopped at East Lake over the weekend for a visit with Harold Sargent. Bill was on his way back to Tulsa following a visit to Dunedin, Fla.

Conference on Gambling Draws Only One School

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP)—Only one of eight invited guests showed up Monday at a collegiate conference on basketball gambling.

The only school to accept the invitation was Manhattan College, whose basketball squad allegedly was the target of last week's sensational attempted fix.

The meeting was called by Long Island University and its president, Trestman W. Metcalfe, declined to comment on the absence of the other invited guests.

Besides Manhattan, invitations were sent to Columbia, Fordham, New York University, City College, St. Johns of Brooklyn, Brooklyn College and St. Francis of Brooklyn.

Five men were arrested after Manhattan's lanky Negro basketball star, Junius Kellogg, said he was approached last week and offered $1,000 to throw a game against DePaul. Manhattan beat DePaul in an upset, 62-59.

Among those seized and later freed on bond on bribery and conspiracy charges were Henry Poppe and John Byrnes, co-captains and stars of last year's Manhattan five. Poppe admitted throwing three games last season, authorities said.

Ray Eliot To Stay At Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 22—(AP)—Head football Coach Ray Eliot, of Illinois, who had been considered for the vacant coaching spot at the University of Southern California, announced Monday he is staying at Illinois.

In a statement issued after a conference with Illinois' officials and members of his coaching staff, Eliot said that the university "is so much a part of me that I felt I should stay here."

He said that one of the main factors in his decision to stay was the "appeal of every member of the football squad" not to make the change.

Eliot and his Line Coach Burt Ingwersen had made a flying trip to Los Angeles Friday to talk with U. S. C. Athletic Director Willis O. Hunter about the opening.

'Terror,' Nelson Top Mat Show

Other bouts match Farmer Jones and Jack Steele, Bobby Lane and Bob Orton, and Tarzan White and Nick Carter. One other match will be announced later. The card starts at 8:30.

2,000 Youngsters, Adults Play in 'Y' Cage Leagues

By JESSE OUTLAR

Back in 1891, YMCA officials felt the need for a sport which would provide members with indoor recreation during the Winter months.

Dr. James Naismith, 'Y' physical director at Springfield, Mass., was assigned the task of inventing such a game. After due deliberation, Dr. Naismith drew up a set of rules, hung up a couple of peach baskets and basketball was born.

Immediately, the cage rage was on. The doctor provided just what the doctor ordered. A success from the start, basketball is now America's top spectator sport.

But at the YMCA, only the rules have changed. Basketball is still merely a game for recreation.

This year more than 2,000 kids and adults are bouncing balls in YMCA gyms around Greater Atlanta.

Energetic Lloyd Sanborn, who has spent 19 of his 37 years in 'Y' work, directs the vast program from his headquarters at the Metropolitan YMCA. Officials of eight branch Y's, countless civic clubs and individuals make the program click with clocklike precision.

Sanborn, a graduate of Springfield college, checked his records the other day and came up with some interesting figures.

There are approximately 1,600 youngsters in the 24 Gra-Y Leagues, which list 155 teams. Over 400 players are numbered on the rosters of 34 adult teams in four leagues. These statistics include both white and Negro teams.

Games seldom attract more than 40 fans, but it makes no difference to teen-age competitors. They couldn't be more enthusiastic if the gym were packed with screaming supporters.

The eight branches, which promote the fine program, with the Metropolitan, are North Fulton, North Atlanta, South Atlanta, South Fulton, West Fulton, Eastern Atlanta, Decatur, Service and Butler Streets.

Of course, basketball is merely one link in the Y's athletic chain. Swimming, fencing, wrestling, gymnastics, volley ball, weightlifting, badminton and handball are other sports with large followings. Classes are held under capable instructors in each sport.

Who Fired Prep's Longest Basket?

The Constitution would like to find out who, when and all about the longest basket scored in Georgia prep cage annals.

A decade ago, when the State Class B boys' tournament was held at Athens' Woodruff Hall, Jimmy Johnston, of Clarkston, fired one from midcourt, some 45 feet away from the hoop.

That may or may not be it. We'd like to know. Mail your nomination with the player's name, date and site and distance to Jack Jackson, Constitution Sports Department, Atlanta, Ga.

Fair Play vs. Partisan Politics

We believe the innate sense of fair play of the average Senator was responsible yesterday for the retreat of Administration forces before the first test on Gov. Talmadge's proposed constitutional amendment providing for a mandatory party primary under the county unit system.

Debate on the issue was continued until today by Administration forces, who conceded they did not have enough votes to win. They hoped to recoup strength overnight. It was the third postponement since the bill was introduced. The first was in committee and the second came when action scheduled for last Friday was delayed.

Administration spokesmen are attempting to make the mandatory primary bill a straight county unit affair. They are yelling "carpetbagger" at those who refuse to go along.

But the reaction yesterday indicated the Senators have done some solid thinking of their own and are not being misled.

There was Sen. Duncan, of Lawrenceville, born and reared in the country and a firm advocate of the county unit system. His grandfather was killed fighting with Confederate troops in the Battle of Kennesaw Mountain. Sen. Duncan declared his family had voted the Democratic ticket for generations, but insisted he wants to make sure his right to vote otherwise is not infringed.

Does the Administration call Sen. Duncan a carpetbagger?

And Sen. Osgood Williams, of Crawfordville, who walked across the Stephens yard on his way to school in his youth and now is a supporter of the county unit system—does the Administration call him a carpetbagger because he is against closing the door to candidates who are not chosen in a State-wide primary?

Suppose, as Sen. Duncan did on the floor of the Senate, that this proposal became law. And then suppose the Communist Party got busy and named a candidate through a State-wide primary as required. And then suppose the Democratic Party candidate died before the general election. There would be no legal way to choose a candidate to oppose the Communist and he would be elected by default. That, of course, is a far-fetched illustration, but it shows the workings of the proposal.

It is obvious that Sens. Duncan, Stephens, Williams and the many who share their views are not carpetbaggers but honest patriots who do not allow selfish political interests to dominate their thinking.

The mandatory primary amendment would virtually outlaw any party in Georgia except the Democratic Party. It would forever eliminate the hope of the great majority, firm Democrats though they be, that a strong Republican Party some day will arise in the State.

The Senators are thinking the matter over seriously. And that is encouraging. The deeper they go into the effects of this measure the less likely they are to be influenced by false and vicious claims.

Will Russia Wait To Strike?

Gen. Eisenhower's tour of Western Europe has resulted in the promise of at least six additional divisions of troops to bolster Allied strength against possible Russian invasion.

Four of the new divisions, two each from Britain and France, will be available this year. Belgium's two divisions will be ready some time next year.

Together with the four divisions proposed to be sent from this country and eight divisions already in West Germany, this will bring the Western force to 18 divisions.

The Russians have something like 175 divisions which can be thrown into combat within 30 days. Within three to six months the Soviets could muster a force of about 300 divisions.

Compared to the tremendous Russian and satellite armies, the Western force, even with the additions promised, is puny indeed. But if Gen. Eisenhower has succeeded in alarming free Europeans to the imminence of danger, as there is reason to believe he has, his mission has not failed by any means.

The disturbing question is, will the Russians wait for the allies to rearm, or will the invasion timetable be moved up to strike long before we can get ready?

Until recently there has not been ready evidence the Soviets were preparing for an extraordinary military venture. There has been no intensive propaganda campaign to prepare the Russian peoples for war. Military maneuvers have not been particularly unusual.

What might mark the beginning of a new and vicious propaganda campaign, though, was sounded in Moscow Sunday by one of the Communist Party's top ideological experts, Peter Pospelov. He spoke before the top men of the Soviet, including Stalin and Molotov. He denounced the United States bitterly and accused this country of plotting a third world war. The forum from which he spoke and the occasion, the twenty-seventh anniversary of the death of Lenin, give the charges the prestige and official sanction needed for broadcasting and rebroadcasting to the Russian people.

There have been in recent months, significant moves by the Soviet and satellite armies. In East Germany bridges have been strengthened and new railroad tracks laid. New airfields frantically are being pushed to completion and supply and ammunition dumps established.

The Soviets do not need more men. There are ample troops in East Germany and Poland to launch an invasion of Western Europe. They are well trained.

Against a Russian thrust in coming months is the acknowledged supremacy of this country in atomic bomb stockpiles and production. Many believe the threat of atomic retaliation will stay the Kremlin's hand until Russia's own production has displaced this country's present margin of superiority. By that time, if the present sense of urgency which Gen. Eisenhower has aroused still prevails in Western Europe, Allied defenses should be sufficient to meet an attack.

That is the hope Gen. Eisenhower's mission has stirred. Only the Kremlin can say whether or not it is a valid one.

Four Bills That Ought to Pass

Four bills relating to motor vehicles were dropped into the hopper in the Georgia House last week. Each deserves passage.

One requires that automobile owners have certificates of title to show proof of ownership. Certificates of title are to automotive vehicles what deeds are to houses.

Another of these bills outlaws "hot rods" by making it illegal to "soup up" the engine of a car without a special permit.

A third measure would insure financial responsibility of motorists through requiring liability insurance, and still another stiffens the penalty on drunken drivers.

These, together with the adoption of the uniform traffic code, would go a long way toward protecting Georgians against financial loss as well as loss of life and limb.

We can't see how there could be opposition to their passage.

Try This on Your Pocket Lens

The Lord's Prayer in type on a 12-point quad and the Ten Commandments cut in stone on the side of a mountain have in common that they are portions of the Word so arranged as to draw attention, not only to text, but to medium of presentation. But the slug bearing the prayer has an advantage—you can carry it around in your pocket. And that's what a lot of Atlantans have been doing since last week. To point up National Printing Week, the Printing Industry of Atlanta ordered 10,000 of the slugs, made by the Monotype Company as an advertising novelty. All 10,000 were gobbled up early in the week, Dick Stout, executive director for the printers' association, reports, and 5,000 more have been ordered. Pastors want them for their congregations, the Salvation Army will get a supply, so will Chaplain Bill Allison for Fulton County's prisoners. Men who handle type every day have shown a great interest in these Scriptural souvenirs, symbols of the versatility of the printers' trade.

Not only that, but the Lord's Prayer in tiny type has uncovered a similar curio—the alphabet, capital letters at that, on a six-point linotype mat. Of course, there are only 26 letters in the alphabet compared to 65 words in the Lord's Prayer. But a six-point mat is half the size of a 12-point quad, and the latter is about the size of the head of an eight-penny nail.

Earl Dennington, linotype doctor in the Journal-Constitution composing room, gave me the mat, product of the Mergenthaler people. Linotypists Louie McClurkin and Wallace Fleetwood cast from it some slugs. The boys in the shop think the letters might show up in print. (You can see them on the mat without benefit of a glass or at least you can through bifocals.)

I don't know if the letters will be legible.

"Rocky" Griggs thinks yes, maybe, and he's been making up editorial pages for nigh on to 25 years.

There's one way to find out. At the end of this line are the ABCs in six point, like this ■. Maybe you can read them with a 100-horsepower magnifier. If you can read them with the naked eye, you're too darned close.

THE LINOTYPE, by the way, is that invention of Ottmar Mergenthaler (1854-1899) which if you don't watch it makes your paper read like this: "Mrs. M——, who broke her arm, is recovering under the car of Dr. Downs."—New Jersey paper as quoted by "Red" Anglin in The Stewart-Webster Journal.

Until TV Us Do Part?

Does love fly out the window when TV comes in the door?

Are we in for a rash of red-eyed plaintiffs testifying in Domestic Relations Courts: "Ours was a happy home, Judge, until the cable came into our life!"

Incidentally, so far as I can determine, this is the first time in history that a 16-inch screen has been listed as corespondent.

At this rate, the next thing you know, somebody will be entering an alienation of affection suit against Hopalong Cassidy, Milton Berle or Howdy Doody.

In fact, a lot of wives are probably beginning to realize that Faye Emerson is the other woman in their husband's life.

This brings up an interesting question: Can a man's heart belong to Mama when he only has eyes for Dagmar?

Of course, when it comes to real suffering, television is indisputably harder on the husband than the wife. You can't fix much of a supper when you're only in the kitchen during station breaks.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

An Explanation For the Record

WASHINGTON—Many people are expressing a curious interest in why our armed forces did not destroy the series of important hydroelectric dams in North Korea at the time we had the Communists on the run and had extended our lines almost to the Manchurian border.

The statement has been bantered about by misinformed people that by not destroying the dams we have permitted the Communists to continue an important source of war production. This was perhaps a logical conclusion on the assumption that the dams were in operation and were being used to provide electric energy for war industries supposed to be operating in the area.

It never did make sense that we would have permitted a condition of that kind to exist, of course, although we have been guilty of a similar omission, it seemed, in not bombing other extensive power works employed by the Communists along the Manchurian border.

The Question Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, new chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, was curious enough about the matter to put the question to Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, during a recent appearance before his committee.

Gen. Collins' explanation was, as regards the North Korean dams, that no power development is now going on there. The Russians, he explained, had stripped the dams of all hydroelectric machinery during their occupation of the country immediately after the war. He described the dams as now "naked." Nothing was to be accomplished, therefore, in blasting them to bits.

The situation with regard to the power works in Manchuria is somewhat different. There the dams are still operating, with no effort having been made by our air forces to blast them into rubble. We could do that any day, of course. A few of our big bombers based in Japan could put the dams out of business with a single mission.

The best answer as to why we have not done it is to be found in the United Nations mandate under which we are operating in Korea. This mandate merely gives us and the other UN forces authority to put down aggression in Korea, without sanctioning any extension of our attacks beyond the North Korean border. We have simply sought to obey the letter of the law.

Often during the forward movement of our forces in North Korea, units of our air force tangled with Communist planes. When the going got hot for the Commie pilots they invariably took refuge over Manchuria. We pursued them only to the border and then gave up the chase.

Other Angles Other matters of strategy and policy may lie in our refusal so far to bomb the Manchurian power projects. It is a matter of no great moment at the present whether the power production continues or not. If we are to become engaged in a long-scale war with the Chinese Reds, it would matter a great deal, perhaps. When we finally reach a point where we are certain of the situation, the dams can be destroyed at any time. They are like sitting ducks to our bombers.

The infamy of the situation is that it is being used as a source of propaganda and poison against the Government in Washington. People of the McCarthy school of smearing are saying that our reason for not destroying the dams is due to the influence of Reds and Pinks in the State Department. The thought is too ridiculous for words. One of the two-bits type of radio commentators operating out of Chicago actually had the foolhardiness to offer that as an answer to our failure to let the bombs drop on these developments in North Korea and Manchuria.

Gen. Collins in his statement before the Senate Armed Services Committee should have ended the matter. Unfortunately, what he said was in executive session and was not made available to the public. Sen. Russell in asking the question was merely repeating queries put to him. He naturally was too well informed to be taken in by the reports, but merely asked to get an official explanation.

BUGS BAER

Investigations in Washington prove that loyalty is getting to be a part-time job.

The regional board of garbage disposal just told a convicted fellow traveler he was so slippery he cried soapy water.

There was an affecting scene when they packed him off. It was like a worm saying good-bye to its apple in a cider mill.

"Marital surveys indicate husbands should be approximately four to six years older than wives. Greater differences in ages may impose extra burden on wives if the couples reach old-age." —Article quote.

The dreams of youth are pleasant dreams . . . which fill each passing day . . . youth has no past to speak of and old age seems far away . . . they see their parents getting gray or growing frail or fat . . . and think "I'll never see the day when I look like that."

"Here comes the bride," the organ plays, the bride is like a flower . . . the bridegroom, young and handsome, filled with vigor, vim and power . . . she thinks he will be just the same some fifty years from now . . . he cannot visualize her as a weather-beaten frau . . . so, in this pleasant atmosphere, the wedding vows are made . . . and from that moment both of them begin to wilt and fade.

The years go by, she fattens till she's like a butter-ball . . . or starts to shrivel up until she has no shape at all . . . and then, observing he is bald and somewhat overstout . . . says to herself, "Is this the thing I used to cry about . . . he never takes me any place, he's like a lazy hound . . . and hardly has the energy to drag himself around."

A Great Crisis

The Editors: I am still looking upward, trusting in Christ Jesus.

We had a joyous Christmas because friends helped to make it so. We were in good spirit and on Dec. 30 my home was destroyed by fire. Everything was destroyed by fire. One of my babies perished in the flames.

I was at the doctor's office when I was told and you can imagine my shock at the news.

I am facing a great crisis. We are out of doors. I am asking every organization and person who will to help in this cause toward the rebuilding of our home.

I appreciate your help in the past and I am pleading with you to see us through.

I have undergone many hardships for the cause. I hope to realize my dream some day.

Pray for us and may God add a blessing to you. SARAH MURPHY, President,

A Worthy Cause

The Editors: The people of Polk County are very appreciative of your editorial indorsement of the Sarah Murphy Home for Dependent Children.

Sarah and her husband for many years supported and cared for a large number of children of their own race from their own limited resources, with little if any help from any other source.

Lately the home has been reorganized, with trustees from both races, with a comparatively small amount of public assistance for the service she has given and sacrifice she has made.

It has been my privilege for many years as judge of the city and juvenile courts of Polk County to give her institution the proper legal custody of the children she is caring for, so that her work can be carried on without friction from outside sources.

The people of Georgia could not find a more worthy institution to aid, not only in providing a suitable home, but also in providing a suitable endowment to insure continuance of this work in the future. JOHN L. TISON.

Ire Aroused

The Editors: I read your fine newspaper from cover to cover every day. Two articles have aroused my ire. They concern two different, but related subjects—"The High Cost of Living Including Prices and Taxes" and "The International Situation."

(1) It seems that price and wage controls will be only a farce. December's cost of living index exceeded the previous high by 1.2 per cent, yet the controls will roll prices back only to Jan. 1, 1951. They should, of course, be rolled back to June, 1950.

Federal income taxes are going up and it seems that Talmadge is going to leave the State income tax on when the sales tax is added. I am 100 per cent in favor of the sales tax as it will reach all the people. However, the income tax should be abolished. My wife and I both work and manage to get along, but what are the poor people and Negroes going to do? Starve? ? ?

(2) Our Government went along on the latest peace offer to Communist China only to prove that we would go to great lengths to prevent war. We agreed that if Peiping would cease fire we would discuss both Korea and Formosa. Peiping rejected the UN proposal.

My only complaint here is that Nehru has now announced he will fight and fight hard in the UN to keep us from declaring Communist China an aggressor. To what lengths will this man go to keep us from bombing Manchuria? This is the supply line which is furnishing equipment to kill American boys. Nehru is an appeaser as was Gandhi before him. J. R. W.

A Scout's Complaint

The Editors: I live in Sylvan Hills. I am 13 and a member of Scout Troop 105. I am also a patrol leader.

The City of Atlanta thinks it has won a victory in Perkerson Park by putting up grills and swings and stuff. A lot of fun we Scouts would have on the swings and cooking in the fireplaces.

We like to go out into the woods and cook over an open fire with the trees around us and the stars above us at night.

But I went over there Tuesday looking for a place to camp away from other people and houses. There are roads and lots staked off. We boys can't go to Camp Bert Adams or some place like that every time we want to pitch camp.

Sure, the swings and sliding boards are good for small boys and girls, but where are we going? Those new apartments and all of the new homes have taken up our play area.

They want us to have plenty of fresh air and exercise, but what do they want us to do? Go pitch our camps by the grills? And ride our bicycles on the new roads?

MEMBER, Scout Troop 105.

"Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."—Ephesians 4:13.

The weighing machine in the doctor's office has attached to it a measuring rod for height.

I rarely step upon the scales to weigh that I do not also adjust the rod. I don't know why, for I have known a long time how tall I am.

You and I really should be concerned lest we lose height spiritually, lose the highest pinnacle our souls have reached.

And we should not be content with that achievement. There is no other concern so laudable as that of pressing ever upward in vision, in sacrificial devotion to God and man.

By Thy standard, Saviour, Thine alone, we would assess our wills and affections. Keep us now this day worthy of the heritage of the faith which is ours.

THOMAS L. STOKES

At Least One 'Trust-Buster' Lives

WASHINGTON—In these days of global turmoil it's refreshing to hear around here an echo of the days of bare-knuckled, old-fashioned American political progressivism, even if just to remind us again of what it was, and what it might be again. Those were the days when horny-handed men of the farms and small towns lambasted the "trusts" and fought to get the voice of the plain people heard in Congress. It comes in a lament by Rep. Usher L. Burdick, Republican, North Dakota, that "the progressive forces of the Republican Party in Congress are having a most difficult time in preserving the nucleus of that organization." He adds, "Of the old forces, headed by Robert M. LaFollette and George Norris, there are only three members left who can be depended upon at all times to uphold the progressive cause."

In this "thee and me" category he lists himself and Reps. Hull and Witherow of Wisconsin, the home State of the late "Fighting Bob" LaFollette. He concedes there are about 30 other Republicans in the House "that show progressive symptoms on some measures, but not all."

When he pointed out that only one of the 30 new Republican members of the House—Rep. Prouty, Vermont—voted against restoring to the Rules Committee its dictatorial powers over legislation on the opening days of the 82nd Congress, he churned up memories in this reporter of the valiant fight by Republican progressives back in the 1920s to make the House a more democratic body, amenable to the will of the people.

In this year 1951, Southern Democrats joined with conservative Republicans in the successful fight to give back to the Rules Committee—controlled by the Southern Democratic-Republican coalition—the power to pigeonhole legislation of which it was deprived two years ago.

In those long-gone days—back in 1923 it was—Southern Democrats tied up with insurgent Western Republicans and a couple of New Yorkers to effect a reform by which bills could be forced to the floor by petition of 150 members and thus by-pass the Rules Committee. This coalition held up election of a speaker and organization of the Republican House for days until they got this reform sponsored by Rep. Crisp, Georgia. It was abolished and on petition by 218, a majority, was restored in due course when Democrats returned to power, as is the custom of majority parties. But it was a victory for those days, and what fun to watch!

All through that era Republican insurgents were fighting constantly and paved the way for later New Deal reforms.

Rep. Burdick, in his "Your Congressman Comments" message to his folks back home, used the good old scrappy, salty terms—lusty cliches—in speaking of the sad state of Republican progressivism of the LaFollette-Norris kind today, to wit:

"What does this mean on the continuation of the great reforms of LaFollette and Norris? Does it mean that Federal power development is to be sabotaged and power development finally turned over to the power trust? Will rural electrification be sabotaged? Will the support prices of agriculture be withdrawn and curtailed? Will the Taft-Hartley Law give way to a more stringent law? Will the power trust, the oil trust, the manufacturers trust, the munitions trust, the tobacco trust and the banking trust of America be installed again in the seats of the mighty? Will Congressmen and Senators who refuse to be errand boys be weeded out of public life?"

Sweet music is that old, familiar language to a reporter who lived to the full here in those days when old-fashioned progressivism was on the march, when the breath from the prairies was hot and compelling.

Three cheers to Mr. Burdick for reminding us again. He should be encouraged, for all those "trusts" he named are still around, as he knows, and some of them ready to exploit the emergency to recoup and re-entrench themselves.

CHANNING COPE

Don't Let Them Get Dependent

SWEETWATER CREEK, Ocala National Forest, Fla.—"It doesn't pay to be so friendly with birds and fish and other outside animals that you get them dependent on you," said Homer Edenfield.

"Take yard birds, for example. You put out feed for yard birds all Summer and Winter just so you can have them around or else because you really like them, and then when the freeze comes you hike off to Florida to get warm and the birds don't get fed at the very time they need the feed, and you've made them so dependent on you they don't know how to go out and fend for themselves."

"That's the way it is with people, too," says Bob Ferguson, the free enterprise man.

"Take these bream down here in this beautiful spring," continued Edenfield. "No one has ever been able to catch them on a bug or a plug or on live bait or on worms. Why? Because they are suspicious, that's why. Also, they depend on themselves and they look out for themselves. If you started throwing bread out to them day after day they would soon grow careless and someone would slip a bit of bread on a hook and it would be good-bye fish."

"That's what the New Deal did all over the country," says Ferguson. "Only the New Deal used hams and jobs and the people got careless and now they can't do for themselves and the New Deal is promising them security from the cradle to the grave and the people are getting more like sheep all the time and it's only a question of time until they have a number instead of a name.

"And it all began when Tom, Dick, and Harry began to take little nibbles of bread that the New Deal tossed into the stream for them. We took the nibble and then we wanted a bite and then we wanted a whole loaf and soon we will want governmental love and affection and care from babyhood to senility."

FRED OTHMAN

All's Not Quiet on the Potomac

WASHINGTON—There are no dummy machine guns yet on the roof of the U. S. Capitol, such as the big brains installed during the last war to fool the Nazi bombers, who somehow never arrived. But our town otherwise is beginning to resemble nerve-shattering, toe-crushing wartime Washington. In some ways, it's more so. The hotels are jammed. Some are beginning to move the chairs from their lobbies so there'll be more standing room. Twelve dollars for a night a single room is nothing unusual and the big businessman who gets it at any price figures he's a lucky man. The five percenters are congregating. Some of them are advertising in the papers: "Government business procured; good contracts." The restaurants are filling up; at many of the better ones a fellow these evenings has to stand in line to get a table.

One public relations outfit published a special directory of Washington for businessmen the other day, listing the addresses and phone numbers of all important purchasing and contracting agencies. Before this booklet could come off the press, there were so many changes that the publishers had to insert a page of corrections.

Congressmen, who ought to be busy passing laws, complain that they're spending their time trying to pacify irate constituents, caught in the meshes of controls and rising prices. They're also spending a good deal of time escorting these same constituents to the offices of Federal bigwigs and frequently getting lost in the process.

The taxis, which a fellow never could find during the war, fortunately continue plentiful. Then there were 4,500 of these hacks, perambulating at bargain fares. Now there are better than 9,000 of them. The fares remain the same—20 cents a ride if you've got somebody with you—and I suppose that is probably the only fee in town that hasn't risen since the war.

Apartments, despite an enormous building program, are becoming scarce. A newly arrived defense worker who wants a two-roomer with a kitchen in a hurry has got to take one in a brick pile occupying what was a rural cow pasture a year ago. Living quarters in town rarely are available to the ordinary gent coming here on the usual Government salary.

Nobody's lining up yet for nylons, or cigarettes, and, according to the masterminds, probably won't have to. But the masters keep changing, the new ones continue to issue statements, and what we've got now is a shortage of expert mechanics to keep the mimeograph machines running.

I mean if you're figuring on spending your Spring vacation here under the cherry blossoms, it might be well to think again.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Hot Controversy With a Ph. D.

NEW YORK—I accept controversy with Jim Dan Hill, who entitles himself Ph. D., president of Superior State College, Superior, Wis., who offers further confusion, seasoned with hot prejudice, on the subject of chili con carne and chili mac, which latter delicacy he treats with disdain only barely exceeding his contempt for me. Doctor Hall is an occasional essayist for the Superior Evening Telegram whose managing editor, Seegar Swanson, has thrust these views upon me. This issue may be called a sideshow, a Gallipoli or Antwerp, distracting moral force from principal issues of a fateful time. But one must not yield these underbellies for lack of a will to maintain the faith.

"President Truman, on his recent visit to Missouri, paused at a swivel stool bean parlor to join a few old cronies for a bowl of a heavy red soup that, in Kansas City, seems to pass for chile," Jim Dan Hill, Ph. D., began.

Now note, if you will, the smear technique. He attempts to make me a sponsor of the Vergne Dixon recipe which Mr. Truman scoffed in the Kansas City place, which, with nasty grace, he calls a "bean parlor."

I agree that Mr. Truman's version of chili is an illegitimate, reformist compromise, for the recipe that Mr. Dixon sent me contains neither chili powder, onions, tomatoes nor garlic. But that is no excuse to call it red bean soup. Such harsh contempt for the feelings of others has caused much of our domestic rancor, and here we find a savant giving hurt where he might have shed kindly light.

"An expert," he writes, "must qualify himself. Otherwise, some self-anointed bean-parlor epicure will be taking the same sort of critical liberties with my remarks that I have seen fit to make relative to Mr. Pegler's concept. My experience with real chili con carne begins near the dawn of my memory. My father had a general store at Santa Anna, Texas. One of the more respected Latin members of the community was Chile Joe. With a five-gallon lard can strapped to his back and a bundle of out-of-date Fort Worth Records under his arm, Chile Joe would trudge the hot, dusty village streets. Occasionally, he would pause to yell 'Chee-ee-lee!' When its echo had ricocheted from the sides of the mountain he would break into the only English he knew:

"'Hot tamales, fresh and fine
"'Six for a nickel, twelve for a dime.'

"A stern evangelist came to Santa Anna from a post in Yucatan. His sermons were cauterized by the searing heat of a millennial inferno. On a fishing and hunting trip that my dad and Col. Weaver organized, the parson turned out to be a quite likeable fellow. When his turn came to tend the camp and prepare the food I appointed myself his assistant.

"The moment he began blending a crock of coarsely ground bullneck with chopped garlic, olive oil, bacon fat and a double handful of bright, red, dust-dry chile powder I knew a work of art was in progress. He gave it all a quick treatment in a heavy, hot skillet and tossed it into a big, cast-iron pot of frijoles. Over a slow fire these beans had simmered, softened and seasoned in a sow-belly pot liquor through the night. Then from his duffle bag the parson produced some special bottle of red condiments. They bore Yucatan labels. From each of these he splashed in several squirts with the same lavish abandon that a country barber anoints a bridegroom with hair tonic. As I stirred, rich pungent aroma rode a gentle zephyr down the canyon. It brought in all hands, drooling.

"All of us slurped with recurring tears, sustained gusto and rising crescendo. Mr. Cobb was the first to pause. It was to intercept a tear that was about to water down his chile. As he tucked the red bandana back he said, 'Reverend, from the beginning, I've thought some of your sermons were too heavy with brimstone and hell-fire, but I never suspected you carried samples.'"

VIRGINIA POLHILL PRICE

A Relic, But Not From the Legislature

In The Louisville News and Farmer

Come go to the Atlanta antique show, they said to me, thinking to be kind. The show was truly lovely and interesting and made me wish that I could own some of the rare porcelains and old silver, but over and above the desire for possessions, was the realization that I, too, am quite an antique. Many of the things that customers were exclaiming over and buying at ridiculously high prices were things that reminded me of my childhood and looked to me like old and familiar faces, seen after a long, long time.

Syrup pitchers for instance. When we were children the silver syrup pitcher was put on the table as regularly as the knives and forks. My mother knew little about the well-balanced diet, about which the magazines write so often these days, but we grew to be strong and rugged children on an economy menu of baked sweet potatoes, turnip greens and home made syrup. As I recall, we slogged our plates generously with "long sweetening," maybe too generously, because syrup is not one of my favorite foods, and when I serve it with waffles I use the small container in which it was bought. I wonder what happened to the silver container of childhood days?

And what became of the little crescent shaped dishes that we used for all sorts of things, but that the antique dealers call "bone dishes" and sell for ash-trays? And the little long-nosed pitchers in deft blue or hand-painted with pink roses . . . where are they?

I know the whereabouts of the old casters. My sister creates flower arrangements for the little silver-mounted pepper pots and mustard jars. I think there is another caster tucked away somewhere in my "rat heaven" and I am considering bringing it out, equipping it properly and using it when the youngsters eat hamburgers with me. Think of the steps it would save in bringing to the table all the various condiments that the children want!

Speaking of step saving, one day recently my sister and I went visiting in a near-by town. As we sat and talked we caught a glimpse of the dining room table when a door was opened.

"Did you see what I saw?" my sister asked on the way home. "The table was right under that lovely crystal chandelier—and I judge the table was all laid and ready for supper, but was neatly shrouded with an extra table cloth. The cover went to a high point in the middle of the table just like our cover used to do when we were children. Who in the world saddled us with the idea that after every meal the table has to be stripped bare, the cloth and silence cloth folded away and everything removed, and then a few hours later lugged back into the dining room and the work done all over again?"

My sister was wrong when she said that our dining room table was left bare between meals. Truth is, we had a thick brocaded sort of table cloth—or perhaps it was a piano cover—and after meals, it was put on the table. At night we sat around the table and read or studied and talked.

An antique dealer showed me some old electrified oil lamps. "These are the original lamp chimneys," he said boastfully. Ugh! The very sight of the lamp chimneys sickened me because it reminded me of cold afternoons on my Aunt Sudie's back porch. She carried a washpan of warm water out to the shelf on the bannister and there the lamp chimney was washed and polished until it shone.

But your nose shone, too—and the warm water and cold wind chapped your hands and sometimes you dropped the chimney and broke it. Always you had a longing to smash it.

But I have one antique which time has not withered nor the years dimmed at all. I don't know who bought it, but my brass spittoon is as shiny and conspicuous as it was in Belle Wattling's day. At Christmas time I ram it full of holly and cedar and in the Spring I fill it with dogwood but 'tis not of the blossoms my friends always speak when they see the spittoon.

Invariably they ask me if I inherited a good aim along with the family brass. The classic comment was made by a casual acquaintance who called one day. "Why, Virginia!" he said, looking at the cuspidor, "I did not know that you had served in the Legislature!"

Robber Takes Clothes; Leaves Watch, Ring

TOLEDO, Jan. 22—(AP)—George Welch does not feel too vexed about the loss of $80 worth of clothing to a burglar.

Sunday, when Welch went to his basement to repair a window smashed by the intruder, he found a gold watch and chain and a $200 diamond ring, which the thief apparently had dropped. It will be "finders keepers" if they are not claimed within one year, Welch said.

Your Stars Today

Sun in Aquarius

General Tendencies — With the moon in the sign Leo today people who wear new clothes or jewelry for the first time on this date are supposed to have some bad luck with them—I won't swear that this is so. It's what the old books say. Ordinarily the moon in Leo makes people vivacious and companionable, and maybe this carefree spirit leads to an irresponsible attitude towards belongings. Otherwise things look good today for money matters of a speculative nature or new ventures.

If It's Your Birthday—The next 12 months seem to be interesting and progressive for you, but to bring you so many new activities that you may feel tired or not up to the task of all the requirements placed on your doorstep. The latter part of 1951 looks better than the first few months, chiefly because of the easier financial conditions. It also shows better health or more energy. You are quite often in need of extra vitamins or additional iron, as you know.

Cost of Having Baby Only One-Tenth Car Price

This is the second article by the Woman's Page Editor of the Washington (D. C.) News telling about being both a working and an expectant mother, when she had her new baby—her third.

By COBEY BLACK

WASHINGTON—About the third month of pregnancy, when a squeamish stomach is a thing of the past and a bulging one not yet in evidence, a woman feels and looks wonderful.

The husband of a friend of mine once confided to me at a cocktail party: "If I could choose a time when Betty looks the most beautiful, I'd choose the third month of pregnancy." I looked across the room at his blonde wife, who was expecting their fourth child, and agreed. Her skin glowed, her figure was full, she obviously was enjoying life. She was easily the loveliest woman at the party.

Perhaps hurdling the first three months helps add the glow. Although the average woman skips through the entire period of pregnancy without a discomfort or mishap, the first three months can be disconcerting.

Besides morning sickness (which may occur any time of day), pains in the breast and sometimes the abdomen, and one or two dizzy spells, there's also the chance of miscarriage—since the early months are the most hazardous in this respect.

It is estimated that at least one pregnancy in five ends this way, although half of the miscarriages occur so early that they are mistaken for delayed menstruation. The causes of miscarriage are multiple, but the most common (76 per cent) is an abnormality in the fertilized ovum; nature expels the unliving, imperfect egg.

By the middle of the third month, I was buzzing around, healthy as ever. I decided to keep working until I could no longer reach the typewriter—or at least until the last month. My doctor agreed this was perfectly o. k., provided I felt fine and my monthly checkups continued to be satisfactory.

Because of the Spring fashion shows, I was attending daily luncheons and putting on more pounds than were good for me.

My doctor recommends an average gain of two pounds a month, and no more than 20 for the entire pregnancy. Here's the way the final proper weight gain is distributed: baby (7½ pounds), placenta (1 pound), amniotic fluid (2 pounds), uterus (2 pounds), increase in blood (1 pound), breasts (1½ pounds), making a total of 15 pounds, which, plus 5 pounds in general increase of body fat and tissue fluid, brings it to the proper 20 pounds.

After my weight had jumped six pounds in one month, I was put on a diet consisting mainly of green vegetables, fruits, eggs and lean meats. Potatoes, sweets, bread and butter were restricted. Cocktails were also on the black list, and the doctor suggested I cut down on my smoking.

Here's a list of instructions my doctor gave me. Your doctor may have an entirely different list—equally correct—so be sure to follow his advice, since he alone knows what's best for you.

Exercise: Moderate exercise, no strenuous sports. About an hour's walk each day, and an extra hour of rest.

Hygiene: A daily warm bath or shower; no tub baths during the last month and no douches at any time.

Smoking and drinking: Should be kept to a minimum. Limit smoking to six cigarettes a day, alcohol to one cocktail occasionally.

Intercourse: Contraindicated during first and last month. Permissible at other times except when period would normally be due.

Checkups: Every four weeks for the first seven months, twice monthly in seventh and eighth months, weekly in ninth month. Notify the doctor in case of vaginal bleeding, severe headaches or dizziness, disturbances in vision, excessive weight gain or swelling of feet, hands or face.

Labor: When pains start, notify the doctor and do not eat any solid foods afterwards.

For my first baby I bought all the equipment. I had little knitted sacques, a half-dozen pairs of booties, enough bottles to stock a dairy, bathinette, a bassinet, a crib, a carriage, a car seat, a potty, a play pen and gauze mask.

For my second baby, I used what was left over from the first and sold the carriage, the bathinette and the potty chair, gave away all the bottles but eight, and threw the gauze mask in the wastebasket.

For my third baby I bought eight bottle nipples.

Despite what you may hear, the needs of the newborn are few. You should have six nightgowns, eight bottle units (if you're not nursing), a sterilizer, a set of measuring spoons, a can opener, a pair of tongs, two receiving blankets, a wool blanket, two towels, four sheets, some undershirts and a membership in the nearest diaper laundry. At first the only furniture you'll need is a bassinet. I recommend the portable basket type with legs that can be folded for traveling.

All three of my babies have been sink-bathed, an arrangement I have found entirely satisfactory.

As the baby grows older, he'll need more equipment and clothing (don't we all), but let friends and relatives supply you with ruffled bonnets and moire-taffeta baby books. If you hold out long enough an in-law or a parent might even furnish the crib, the expensive item in baby-having next to baby himself.

And babies are amazingly cheap—much less than a good television set and one-tenth the price of a car. Expenses for our last, born just a month ago, ran about $300. The doctor's bill was $150, the caudal anesthetic $15 and the hospital bill (a semi-private room for six days) ran a little over $120.

The hospital bill, of course, also includes the medicines and all services given during your stay. If the near mother is a member of group insurance before she becomes pregnant, her bills are reduced to a mere pittance. Many doctors also charge according to the salary of the parents.

Refining Robs Your Food Of Vitamins

According to a recognized nutrition authority, most of the calories in the ordinary diet of Americans a hundred years ago came from real whole wheat bread and unrefined molasses and/or unrefined brown sugar. These foods supplied 600 international units of Vitamin B (2) milligrams) daily.

In contrast with this everyday diet of Americans prior to 1850 most of the calories (55%) in the ordinary diet of Americans today come from refined foods which supply only about 50 international units of vitamin B daily.

That's why I say it is necessary to supplement your everyday diet with vitamins and minerals if you want to keep well and enjoy life.

It seems almost impossible to persuade you to replace the refined white flour in your diet with real whole wheat flour and the refined white sugar with "crude" or "raw" brown sugar and the "pure" white syrup and pale insipid "molasses" with genuine old-fashioned blackstrap molasses.

In the first place, you have been brought up to believe refined bleached white flour is the only kind that is quite fit for your delicate digestion.

Since more than nine-tenths of the vitamins and minerals of wheat are contained in the germ and the outer coat or bran, it is obvious that the general use of white flour in modern America is largely accountable for the national malnutrition.

Genuine whole wheat flour does not keep many days and is therefore not suitable for shipment or for storage. It should be used within hours or a few days after grinding or milling.

For this reason real whole wheat flour is hard to buy and bread made of it is available to only a few customers in the immediate vicinity or neighborhood of the miller who grinds it fresh every day or the baker who perhaps grinds his own with a small mill.

A number of ways to use plain wheat in the everyday family diet are described in my pamphlet Wheat to Eat, available on written request if you provide stamped self-addressed envelope.

Theoretically it should be possible to restore to the everyday diet of the American people the nutritional essentials the modern American diet lacks and check the national malnutrition, by prohibiting the manufacture and sale of refined white flour and refined white sugar or syrup.

House Wear at Budget Price Helps You Start Day Pretty

By MAYNITA GERRY

Ever look at yourself in the morning? Hair in pin curls. Vestiges of last night's cold cream still on your face. An old, frayed, and not entirely clean dressing gown, knotted casually somewhere around where your middle would be if you were wearing a girdle. No lipstick, no lilt, no glamour, no charm.

Some vision, eh, for your children to take to school with them? A sad sight for your husband to leave behind as he goes forth into the cold, cold world of suave, sophisticated, well-groomed business women and neat, nattily attired youthful stenographers . . .

Yes, we're familiar with all the old excuses. Lunches to fix, breakfast to prepare, small faces to scrub, a loud masculine voice shouting split-second instructions for clean socks, a fresh shirt, tie, underwear and "where in the heck have you hidden my collarbutton this time?"

It's enough to drive a woman insane. But since it seldom does, there must be another solution. There is. This one will take about five minutes more time than the usual routine, but it's guaranteed to bring good results.

Get up five minutes earlier and comb out your pin curls, wash your face, good and hard, or, better still, take a quick shower. Run a lipstick over your mouth and slip into a fresh clean house dress or brunch coat.

Speaking of the latter, housedothes should always be chosen for wearing qualities, first. They should be designed to allow freedom of movement for dusting, sweeping, stooping. They should, of course, also be entirely color-fast and washable, preferably in cotton, which is comfortable indoors during cold weather and both indoors and out when warm weather arrives. In addition, they should also be easy to get into and out of.

Naturally color is important, chosen for its becomingness to you as well as to your home.

With these guides in mind, along with the ever-present price problem, we made a scouting tour of one of the downtown stores last week to find out what is now available in houseclothes.

Here, briefly, is what we found: Striped seersucker dresses in a variety of colors with white, with back shoulder pleats for arm action and gored skirts for action and fit. These are priced at around $6.00.

Also, a group of back-wrap dresses, with swirl skirts and neat, fitted tops that function on the principal of the sterile coat. These are equipped with sashes that emerge from the side seams and can be tied either in front, side or wrapped entirely around and tied in back. These come in chambray, broadcloth and poplin in solid colors as well as prints, checks and dots. Colors include navy, brown, green, red and a range of pastels often accented with deeper contrasting tones and details vary from stitched collars and pockets to plain ones to lattice-work. Prices of these dresses average from around $4 to $8.

For both indoors and out, consider a wrap-around jumper, sleeveless with a low, scooped neck in any of a variety of pastel denims, piped in contrasting colors, such as blue with red, red with black and pink with navy or yellow with green.

The construction of these jumpers is quite simple. Two bat-wing panels hang open from shoulder seams down, with a row of shallow darts to form the waistline. To get in, you drop it over the head, tie the back panel around to the front and wrap the panel to the back and tie. Obviously, there are no ironing or washing problems, and at a price under $4.

Children Love 'Yes' Habit In Parents

By GLADYS BEVANS

It would help mothers and fathers a lot if they could remember more often what it is like to be a child.

It would surprise you to find how easy it is to acquire the "yes" habit. Not only easy, but pleasant. And not only pleasant, but wise.

The "yes" habit of parents is a good wholesome habit—good for promoting pleasant human, constructive contracts between you and your children. The "yes" habit makes us work together—the children and their parents—instead of pulling away from each other, the way the "no" habit does. And it encourages and admits the rightness of our child's desire to do.

Children are not static little things—nor static big things either. Self-activity is one of the natural laws of their being. Most of the things they want to do are either definitely right and needed—or if not that, quite harmless.

Think, then, of their requests to do certain things or their spontaneous putting of other desires into action, as being a normal selfactivity.

Home Furniture Dealers Predict Few Shortages

By BETTY PROSSER

CHICAGO—(AP)—With production cutbacks and predictions of shortages, many consumers wonder if they'll be able to get the things they plan to buy for their home.

The two-week 1951 furniture market, which recently closed, gave a summarized picture of what's likely to be found in the stores, for the next few months at least.

WOODEN FURNITURE—Is in good supply and probably will continue to be, for the first six months of 1951. Not a single manufacturer in any branch of the furniture industry would venture a guess as to the situation beyond June.

BEDDING—Particularly mattresses and springs—are in somewhat smaller supply, due to a short cotton crop, the skyrocketing price of cotton "linters" or stuffing, and some reported difficulties in obtaining steel. Other makers, however, said they had had no trouble getting steel.

CARPETS—Supplies good but prices are continuing to rise on all-wool pieces due to a spectacular rise in raw wool prices. Blends with chemical fibers, particularly rayon, are being introduced and are reported by manufacturers to excel in both beauty and wearing qualities.

CHROME FURNITURE—In short supply. Dealers are on allocation. However, manufacturers expect to continue production at a good rate for the first quarter of 1951, at least.

JUVENILE FURNITURE—In good supply.

LAMPS—Here there are shortages, particularly in lamps using large amounts of metal. Makers are switching to wood, glass and ceramics.

MAJOR APPLIANCES—Possible future shortages, but at present a fair supply. Home laundry equipment becoming harder to get, particularly dryers.

In GENERAL, many manufacturers have placed their dealers on allocation, but the allocations in most lines are generous. Production capacities—and plans—remain high.

His Voice Alone Is Hollow

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

In the back row of the periphery of chairs in the Georgia Senate there sits a vital, energetic, alert "junior" senator, about whom only one limiting thing can be said: he has a hollow voice.

Actually, Steve Cocke of Dawson, has no voice whatever. The sound one hears coming from his throat is generated by a battery and his own indomitable will to speak and be heard and lose none of his touch with his fellow man.

He is a "laryngectomy"—one of the growing group of men and women who have sacrificed their voice boxes to thwart the spread of cancer, and in so doing have saved their lives at the loss of their vocal ability.

As a foot soldier in the army against the outlaw, Cancer, it is a thrilling thing to see Senator Cocke there in his place, and know how far he has come with a load some would call crushing.

STEVE COCKE

A year ago an Atlanta throat specialist called Mr. Cocke to his office to speak to him frankly before he dismissed him from his hospital. "You have done fine," he said, "You're going to be all right physically. But I have to warn you, the bad days are coming. When you get home and realize you cannot talk, you will suddenly feel very much alone . . . shut out, and you must brace for the shock. There are mechanical aids to speaking, but you must be determined before you can master them . . . prepare for some low moments.

Steve Cocke, all of his life a "personality," grinned. Back at Dawson the next morning he came down to breakfast dressed for work. His wife was not surprised. She helped him find a pad and pencil and he set out to call on his old customers who had awaited his return with their orders for institutional supplies, which were his particular commodity.

He breezed in, waving a pencil, writing cheery messages. They pumped his hands, grabbed the pencil to write back their welcomes.

"Dern it," he fussed, in writing, of course, "I can hear. What d'ya want to make me learn to read for?"

They got the point. It was a one-way writing job.

A few months later, Mr. Cocke advised his wife, Pauline Barbre Cocke, that he thought he would enter the political arena. For years he had worked hard for others, including Steve Pace, his old friend in the big Congress, and he thought it was time for him to do some politicking for himself.

Totally unruffled, his wife agreed. While he went out to work, Mrs. Cocke started calling on the families in their neighborhood. His opponent was a bright young man, a lawyer and a friend of theirs, and both the Cockes thought he would win, but the exercise was good for them both.

Mr. Cocke went on the air, not once, but three times, speaking with a battery pressed against his neck, and all of the simple sincerity he could muster sounded through the mechanical tones. His wife visited everybody in sight.

On election day, six months after the doctor in Atlanta warned him that "the bad times were coming," Steve Cocke walked off with the election as State Senator from Terrell, Randolph and Clay Counties, beating his attractive opponent five to one in the area.

Since then they have never missed a thing. They traipsed off to the West Coast with the party that elected Erle Cocke, Jr., their relative and Dawson's favorite son, to the commandership of the American Legion, and have generally trucked around, having a good time.

When this session is over, Mr. Cocke is heading for Miami. They say there is a school down there that teaches human beings who have sacrificed their larynxes to speak without a battery. If it can be done, they have their man.

As I said, the only thing hollow about the Gentleman from Terrell in his voice.

Here's something delicious to serve over cake or ice cream. Melt a dozen marshmallows in a cup of hot apricot whole fruit nectar and stir in a tablespoon of lemon juice. Serve warm.

Dual Rooms May End Your Need To Move

"Families are constantly on the move," said John Miller, one of Atlanta's leading architects, "mainly because their needs for space change through the years."

And because of exacting limitations by FHA on loans, the increased cost of building materials, and the added problem of labor, more people are beginning to utilize the space they have for fuller use, instead of building.

The obvious solution to the "no-space problem" is a dual-purpose room. A dining room-kitchen combination; a living-dining room; a den-bedroom; or any of a dozen other combinations.

Many apartment dwellers as well as home owners have utilized a corner in their kitchen for dining facilities . . . and put their dining room to better use. Perhaps it was converted into a den that could double for a guest room, or a hobby room, with television, book shelves, desk, and serving equipment.

One of the most popular "room conversions" is dividing one big bedroom into two small ones to accomodate children. Then when the children grow up and leave, the middle wall can be removed and the master bedroom reassume its important proportions. This middle wall is no inexpensive project, but comparatively speaking it is a highly practical one.

Mr. Miller commented that when homeowners want to "spread out" a little, something fairly new is the terrace combination. Build a small inexpensive flagstone terrace adjoining your dining room or living room. With a door between these two, you'll have an easily accessible "outdoor" room you'll probably "live" in six months of the year. When the North winds blow, it's as simple as closing the door. Terrace combinations used for years in the tropics are being seen more and more in suitable Stateside climates.

If it's that wasted space in your hardly-ever-used dining room that worries you, maybe these suggestions will help:

1. Start with the table. Sell, swap or trade that big round (or square) cumbersome table for a drop-leaf or extension-type table. In this way, it can be used for games, study, family projects, buffet or dinner for eight, and can be shunted to a wall when not in use.

2. Captain's chairs or upholstered host chairs will fit other needs of the room, such as television.

3. Make sure the floor is suitable for children's games or dancing, and is easily cleaned. Bright linoleum or cotton throw rugs can cover it.

4. A corner should be provided for the little people, with a sturdy chest for toys or storage space. This chest can be covered with a gay quilted mat to make an extra seat.

5. A nest of tables is always a good investment, for television, and other parties.

With a few of these changes, your old dining room can serve as a general recreation room and also assume part of the burden borne by the kitchen and living room.

If you're cramped for space and can't afford to build or move, turn a critical eye toward the home you're in. By analyzing your needs and rearranging your furniture, you'll probably find you have more "living space" per square foot than you've been using.

Stocks Sag In Mild Sell-Off

It was a lethargic day when contrasted with some of the booming buying sessions of recent weeks. At times, especially in the morning, the market appeared hesitant as to what direction to take.

Prices moved ahead a trifle at the outset when some big orders that had accumulated during the weekend were executed. Then followed a long period of indecisive maneuvering in which gains and losses were thoroughly scrambled.

Around mid-session the sellers started to speed up their operations and prices drifted into a slow decline. At the busiest period of the mild sell-off, the ticker tape fell behind briefly. A few minutes before the close demand reappeared, in small puffs, boosting many stocks well above their lowest prices of the session.

Losses for the bulk of the list ranged from a few cents to around $2 a share. In a few cases, losses were more substantial. Most gains were minor.

BUSINESS

TODAY IN BUSINESS

Junk Business Thriving Under Impetus of Arms

By BILL BORING

This is because war is a great scavenger, thriving on the wastes normally accumulating in the home . . . old automobile tires, rags, paper, metal scrap.

"Junk" is the generic term applied to such domestic by-products and because junk currently is much in demand, it is commanding handsome prices.

A ton of waste paper, for example, is far more costly than coal; scrap iron is bringing around $40 a ton, twice what it brought in World War II.

In addition to the big, well-organized "junk drives," there are the free-lance junkers, the enterprising school youngsters "working on their own" and the regular members of the trade who are out for wastes.

There's big money in junk for anybody willing to work at it. About $20 a day, if you're a hustler.

All of this adds up to "prosperity on the junk front." Which ought to be good. There is, however, one tragic note: As more and more people are finding out they can sell the stuff, the free business, plied chiefly by the Salvation Army, is being dashed harder and harder against the rocks.

Salvation Army collections of waste paper, rags, scrap metal and wire coat hangers have fallen disastrously in the last several months. In fact, collections have been so scanty, Maj. Bob Cowan, a Salvation Army official, states that the very existence of the Salvation Army Social Center here is threatened.

Cowan says latest figures for waste collections by the Salvation Army reveal that paper in a three-month period has dropped from 624,500 to 319,000 pounds; scrap metal has dropped from 35,000 to 6,000 pounds; rags are down to where there practically isn't a single item in the Salvation Army warehouse.

The Salvation Army needs wastes to finance its work among deserving down-and-outers. In addition to the regular waste items, the organization has a big demand for wire coat hangers. If you'd like to contribute, call ALpine 2224 and the Salvation Army truck will come to fetch your "junk."

Death's Sting Felt

Like everything else, the cost of dying is up.

Although in 1948 there were fewer deaths in Georgia than in 1939, the State's undertakers took in 180 percent more money in the former year.

This was reported Monday by the Regional Office of the U. S. Department of Commerce, which listed Georgia's funeral service establishment receipts in 1939 at $3,509,000 compared with receipts of $9,849,000 for 1948.

Butter Switch Denied

In Washington three national dairy organizations charged Monday that restaurants in Atlanta, Savannah, LaGrange, Macon and other cities over the country have illegally switched oleomargarine for butter in a big way since passage of the recent law repealing taxes on oleo. In Atlanta, however, the Atlanta Restaurant Association denied any such development here.

The accusation that the public is being "gypped" was made by the American Butter Institute, National Creameries Association, and the National Milk Producers Federation.

Charles W. Holman, federation secretary, cited a survey of public eating places in five states, including Georgia, showing that 66 of 109 restaurants included in the survey were breaking the law by not displaying signs or noting on their menus that oleo was being served. He said, however, that 66 of the restaurants using oleo did serve it in triangular pats, as required by law.

In Atlanta, Richard W. Florrid, executive secretary of the Atlanta Restaurant Association, said he knew of no violations here. "In fact," he said, "Atlanta restaurants using oleo usually boast of it, pointing out it is an 'all-Georgia product'."

Van Dusen Appointed

William Van Dusen, dean of aviation publicists and an international authority on air transportation, has been appointed by President and General Manager Eddie Rickenbacker as a vice president of Eastern Air Lines, Inc. Van Dusen will serve as Rickenbacker's special assistant. Van Dusen originally organized and for 20 years directed public relations for Pan American World Airways from which he resigned a year ago to devote himself to independent consultant work and writing.

Eligible for Aid

Raymond M. Foley, Federal Housing and Home Finance Administrator, told the Senate Banking Committee Monday, that the 1,500 families to be moved from the Savannah River Atomic Energy Plant area would be eligible for Federal housing aid under the Adminstration's $3,000,000,000 Defense Housing Bill if they became workers at the plant. He added that he thought those who do not go to work at the plant could be given "substantially the same help" through relaxation of credit controls and other measures under existing law.

Stand Sales Spurt

Newsstand sales of newspapers in Georgia have increased 496 percent since 1939, according to the Regional Office of the U. S. Department of Commerce. This was an increase of nearly 300 percent more than that for the nation as a whole.

Pine Orders Increase

New orders of 110 reporting Southern pine mills were 29 percent above both production and shipments in the week ended Jan. 13, according to the Southern Pine Association at New Orleans. As a result of the flurry, back orders at the mills were 38.84 percent a move a year ago.

Moonshining Scored

Moonshining in Georgia and elsewhere in the nation is giving the legal liquor industry fits. The law-abiding sellers are hot after the Alcoholic Tax Control agents to step up their distillery-smashing activities. In this connection, W. W. Wachtel, president of Calvert Distillers Corp., said Monday that moonshining enforcement in the past few years has proved inadequate and was giving illicit operators an increasing advantage in their competition with the legal liquor industry.

FOR TEEN-AGE SAFETY—The automobile industry, more and more, is taking the lead in promoting driver safety. Realizing that an automobile in the hands of the untrained, irresponsible person can be more a weapon than a utility or pleasure car, the industry which manufactures and distributes automobiles is keenly interested in driver training. Best time to acquire driver skill is in high school. Here, O'Keefe High School students of a Driver Training Course and their instructor, Miss Gertrude Caldwell, admire a new Ford training car presented for their use by Burke Motor Co. The car will be used jointly by O'Keefe and Grady High School students.

Cotton Futures Close Higher

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP)—Cotton futures were firm Monday, with the market rising into new seasonal high ground. New crop deliveries led the advance, with commission house and trade buying at one time extending gains to $3.85 a bale. Ceiling consideration, drought in the Western cotton belt, and the feeling in some quarters that farmers will not produce a 16,000,000-bale cotton crop this year all contributed to the demand for distant months which sold somewhat under old crop deliveries. Mill buying was extensive in near-by trading month, but the gains were limited by considerable profit taking and some hedging.

Futures closed 15 cents to $2.85 a bale higher than the previous close.

Drygoods

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP)—The cotton textile market was firm Monday. Offerings were scarce, with only scattered lots of print cloths and other constructions selling mostly for prompt delivery. Military orders continued to dominate the market, while price control fears caused mills to withhold offerings for forward delivery. The Army asked for bids on 15,000,000 yards of cotton sateen.

The wool goods market was steady. Buyers awaited the opening, probably this week, or worsted lines by mills for the second quarter. The New York quartermaster will negotiate directly with mills for 2,450,700 yards of 18-ounze serge cloth.

Rayon goods were firm. Offerings in the second hand market were contracted, with prices strong.

Grain Prices Mixed at Close

CHICAGO, Jan. 22—(AP)—A late selling flurry knocked prices down Monday after grains had displayed a firming trend most of the day.

Most contracts of all cereals fell under the previous close. Earlier, gains had ranged to a couple of cents, all soybean deliveries eking out new seasonal peaks.

The early upturn was characterized mainly by a lack of selling pressures rather than any urgent demand. But when selling expended, it found the market's price structure vulnerable.

Selling followed an item on the financial news ticket quoting Senator O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyo.) as saying that, as far as he was concerned, a speedy slapping on of price controls was being talked about chiefly in newspaper stories.

The prospect of immediate price controls has been bullish on grains because of a feeling prices would work up to ceiling levels, grain men said.

Wheat closed ⅜-1⅛ higher, March $2.45⅝-2.45¼. Corn was 1 to 1⅞ higher, March $1.78⅝-1.78¾. Oats were ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, March, 97⅜. Rye was unchanged to 1⅛ lower, May $1.78¼-1.78. Soybeans were ½ lower to ¼ higher, January $3.22, and lard was 15 cents lower to 2 cents a hundred pounds higher, January $19.07.

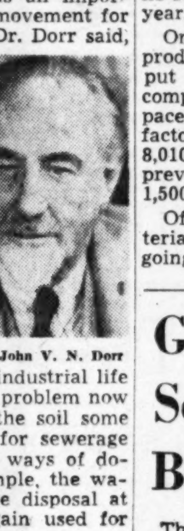
Water Plan Important, Says Dorr

By WELLINGTON WRIGHT

The movement now under way for conservation and purification of Georgia's water resources is a primary factor in building up the economic life of the State, Dr. John Van Nostrand Dorr of Westport, Conn., one of the world's foremost authorities on water pollution, said here Monday.

Soil conservation is an important element in the movement for water conservation, Dr. Dorr said, and in the matter of soil conservation Georgia has done a first-rate job during the past 20 years.



Dr. John V. N. Dorr

"California now faces a shortage of water because the water tables are falling," he continued. "This situation is harmful both to the agricultural and industrial life of that state and the problem now is to put back into the soil some of water taken out for sewerage purposes. There are ways of doing this. As an example, the water used for sewerage disposal at Grand Canyon is again used for irrigation purposes."

Dr. Dorr's company furnishes the equipment used in many industries for water purification and for the filtering processes employed in other industries such as mining and the manufacture of paper products. Most of the paper plants in Georgia and other Southeastern States use Dorr equipment and Dorr processes.

"Wherever paper plants go," Dr. Dorr commented, "we contribute both equipment and method."

Dr. Dorr came to Atlanta to exhibit a motion picture at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Georgia Engineering Society at the Central YMCA.

Dr. Dorr started as a labortary technician in the offices of the late Thomas A Edison. Then, after graduating from Rutgers University, he went West as a mining engineer. While so engaged, he developed his present method of water purification and of separating inert matter from low grade ores. His methods are widely used all over the world.

At the GES meeting, Dr. Dorr was introduced by Dr. Frederick Bellinger, of the Engineering Department of Georgia Tech.

Defense Orders Fail To Tax Auto Industry

By DAVID J. WILKIE
Associated Press Automotive Editor

DETROIT, Jan. 22—(AP)—Despite mounting war orders and better-than-normal civilian output the auto industry has considerable idle production capacity.

It also has a sizable amount of worker idleness at the moment.

Whether the mobilization program in full swing will take up this idleness in plant and manpower even the industry heads themselves do not know. Much of the defense work now being assigned to the auto industry will be handled with new facilities. Meanwhile, materials shortages should cut sharply into civilian production before the end of the year's second quarter.

It isn't surprising that some of the industry's production capacity should be unused at this time. The postwar period saw the greatest expansion of manufacturing facilities in the car industry's history.

A hint of how great was that expansion came last June when the domestic factories built a record-smashing 856,618 cars and trucks. Of course, there will be no such single month's output this year.

One thing overlooked in current production appraisals is that output volume looks low only in comparison with the tremendous pace set last year. Last year the factories produced approximately 8,010,000 vehicles. That topped the previous record by more than 1,500,000 units.

Of course, the diversion of materials for defense production is going to cut into civilian car and truck output this year. This is the surest thing anybody associated with the industry knows right now. So even the present curtailed output rate probably will not be maintained.

Yet it is interesting to note that could the factories go on building vehicles at the present level the year's total output would go well above 7,500,000 units.

Last week the factories built 121,578 passenger cars and 29,061 trucks. That compared with 104,535 cars and 28,348 trucks in the preceding week.

Good Business Seen in 1951 By Cummings

The coming year will see boom times in all fields of business, declares O. Sam Cummings of Dallas, for 30 years Texas State Agent for the Kansas City Life Insurance Company.

Cummings, who is past president of Kiwanis International, is in Atlanta to address a joint meeting of the 10 Kiwanis Clubs in the Atlanta area Tuesday at the Ansley Hotel.

As one of the leaders in the life insurance business in this country, Cummings last year received the John Newton Russell Award for outstanding service from the National Association of Life Underwriters, of which he is a past president.

In reference to the general business situation, Cummings said:

"Things will be booming in 1951. With all this government spending coming, it can't miss making things good for business."

Cummings is especially optimistic about the outlook for life insurance during 1951. The life insurance companies of the nation, he said, ought to do better in 1951 than in 1950 when they wrote $29,500,000,000 in new business. There is still a big market for savings and investment, he continued, and much of this is going into life insurance. He said the recent extension of Social Security benefits to 10,000,000 additional persons has widened interest in life insurance.

Firestone Lists All-Hazard Tire

AKRON, O., Jan. 22—(AP)—The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. announced Monday it is making a new tire that is "blowout safe, puncture proof" and will remove "all hazards from any kind of tire failure." The tire is tubeless and retains most of the air in an inner diaphragm in the event of a blowout, allowing the driver to retain control of the car, the Company said.

ShepardBryan Re-elected by Jefferson Life

GREENSBORO, N. C., Jan. 22—Shepard Bryan, of Atlanta, was re-elected a director of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company Monday in an arrangement which brought to an end a row between officers and an ousted president of the company.

Through this arrangement, which came out of the 44th annual meeting of stockholders, the company added the names of six prominent Southerners to its board of directors and at the same time increased the membership of the board from 18 to 20.

The new directors are C. W. Coker, of Hartsville, S. C.; C. McD. Davis, of Wilmington, N. C., president of the A. C. L. Railroad; S. Marcus Greer, of Dallas, Texas, executive vice president of the Mercantile National Bank; William M. Tuck, of South Boston, Va., former governor of Virginia; Edward Potter, Jr., of Nashville, Tenn., president of the Commerce Union Bank, and R. O. Huffman, of Morganton, manufacturer and president of the North Carolina Business Foundation.

In addition to Bryan, the following were re-elected to the board of directors: Howard Holderness, president of the company; Selby H. Anderson, of Wilson, N. C.; Joseph McGinley Bryan, of Greensboro, N. C.; Marton L. Cannon, of Charlotte, N. C.; C. W. Causey, of Greensboro; W. G. Clark, Sr., and W. G. Clark, Jr., both of Tarboro, N. C.; A. G. Myers, of Gastonia, N. C., and Ralph C. Price, C. E. Leak, John Van Lindley, Pierce C. Rucker and Julius C. Smith, all of Greensboro.

Ralph Price, whose family is said to control more than one-third of the voting stock of the company, was deposed as president last year and demanded a shakeup in the board of directors to include more representatives from other areas in which the company does business. The addition of six new directors was regarded as a compromise agreement to settle Price's complaint.

Holderness, the president, reported to stockholders that 1950 was the greatest year in the history of the company. During the year, he said, the company wrote a total of $130,796,027 in life insurance, a volume six percent more than the previous record established in 1946. He added that during 1951 he expects Jefferson Standard to reach the goal of $1,000,000,000 in life insurance in force. He said that the company's assets now amount to $113.96 for each $100 in liabilities.

19,000 Get Public Aid In Fulton

By BILL DIEHL

Size of Fulton County Welfare Department's vast "heartache empire" may be judged by looking over the monthly report of cases for last December

During that month, this department serviced 15,119 cases involving more than 19,000 persons receiving some sort of financial aid. Many were children up for adoption or receiving aid in free homes. Others were elderly people, unwanted and past the age where they can help themselves, and supported by the County.

The cost of old age assistance alone during the last month of 1950 ran to $272,635.50. Average cost per case: $27.64.

Also during the fading weeks of last year, the Public Welfare Department admitted six persons to the Fulton County Almshouse and eight more to Battle Hill Haven.

And one person was buried quietly in the pauper lot near the County's Bellwood Prison Farm.

School Tour Set

The final tour in an inspection series of Fulton County's schools will be conducted Wednesday by members of the Fulton County P-TA Council, composed of members of the executive council.

The group wil' inspect the facilities offered at the jointly run city-county vocational schools, Carver and Smith-Hughes. Tour will begin at 9 a. m. with a luncheon planned at Smith-Hughes before the inspection party ends.

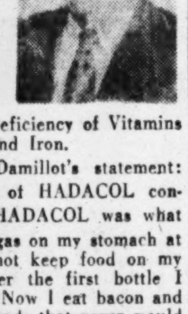
Nothing Better Than Good Food, Says Ohio Man

If a man isn't able to eat the food he likes he's in mighty sorry shape—imagine going through life without being able to enjoy a fine big platter of bacon and eggs. That is the way Joseph N. Damillot, 3414 E. 5th Street, Dayton, Ohio, used to be, but since he has been taking HADACOL, he says he feels just fine and is able to enjoy lots and lots of fine foods. Mr. Damillot found that taking HADACOL helped his system overcome a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron.



Here is Mr. Damillot's statement: "My first bottle of HADACOL convinced me that HADACOL was what I needed for the gas on my stomach at nights. I could not keep food on my stomach, but after the first bottle I was going great. Now I eat bacon and eggs, and other foods that never would stay with me. I also can sleep well at nights. Thanks to HADACOL, I will never be without it, and can recommend it to all who suffer with the above ailments that I had. I know, because I have suffered for quite some time."
